

Burke Criticizes Manner in Which Talk Was Vetoed

Tells Subcommittee Censors' Action Made Him Look Bad

WASHINGTON (AP)—Adm. Arthur W. Radford today testified before the Senate subcommittee on defense that he had been rejected, and that he had had to write and deliver a different speech.

Happened Last Year

Burke said the incident was last year while he was Chief of Naval Operations. He is now retired. He said he didn't object to the fact I had had a speech completely censored.

"What I did object to was releasing this information to the press in such a manner as to indicate I was trying to get away with something, which I wasn't."

Burke told the story at the Senate inquiry into charges that military officers have been muzzled against making anti-Communist statements.

Earlier, he had said that he never felt he was muzzled through review or censorship of his speeches.

"No Objection"

"I have no objection to it at all," Burke said of the long-standing requirement that speeches be submitted to advance review to assure they are in accord with national policy and disclose no military secrets.

President Kennedy said Wednesday the speech reviewing, which he called "very valuable," is going to continue. It is not an innovation of his administration, but was also done in the administration of Presidents Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Burke was in the witness chair of a Senate Armed Services subcommittee which is digging into charges that through the censorship machinery military officers have been "muzzled" against making anti-Communist speeches.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., who made the "muzzling" contention in a series of speeches, is among the subcommittee members.

Burke came before the Senate group Wednesday and read a letter to the committee.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Army successfully fired a Pershing artillery missile on a flight of about 200 miles Wednesday night in a test designed primarily to check warhead components.

Foreign ministers who met here earlier this week to plan the summit conference expressed doubt that any major success could be achieved now.

Outbreak of Flu Hits Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (AP)—An outbreak of influenza was reported Wednesday by City Health Commissioner Dr. E. R. Krumbiegel who said it was now known "just how widespread the cases of flu are at this time."

Krumbiegel said that although laboratory tests are incomplete, he suspects that Type B influenza was spreading among both adults and children.

This type of flu, Krumbiegel said, "usually takes its course," but he recommended that "if a person really gets sick he should call a physician."

The usual symptoms include headache, aching shoulders and back, fever and persistent cough.

The flu has hit a number of other Wisconsin communities, including River Falls, where public and parochial schools have been closed for the rest of the week, and Iron River, where the schools were closed Wednesday.

Kennedy Seeks Support to Dismantle Tariff Barriers

Appeals for Bipartisan Endorsement

WASHINGTON (AP)—

President Kennedy appealed today for prompt bipartisan endorsement of his five-year plan to dismantle the tariff barriers to a freely trading, trillion-dollar economic partnership with Europe.

"We will prove to the world that we believe in peacefully tearing down walls instead of arbitrarily building them," the President told Congress.

Repeating requests made in his State of the Union Message two weeks ago, he asked authority to negotiate tariff cuts of up to 50 per cent on some groups of products and complete elimination of tariffs on other items.

Benefits for Workers

His special message on trade was studied with assurances that the "trade expansion act of 1962," as he titled it, would benefit workers, businessmen and consumers. It would preserve existing safeguards for domestic industry, he promised.

But the government should stand ready to aid farm and factory workers and companies temporarily hurt, Kennedy went on. He proposed these as "effective and relatively inexpensive" measures, without giving a cost estimate.

For workers left idle—financial help for job retraining and relocation, along with federal "readjustment allowances" for up to a full year at 65 per cent of average weekly pay, plus an additional 13 weeks for those over 60. Unemployment compensation, when received, would be deducted.

Rusk Calls for Collective Action by Latin-American Countries Against Castro

BY WILLIAM L. RYAN

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP)—The United States, blasting Cuban and world communism in a slashing attack, called urgently today for a collective Latin-American counterattack against Prime Minister Fidel Castro's Red spearhead.

To turbulent applause, U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk urged 19 other American foreign ministers, sitting in judgment on Cuba, to drum the Castro regime out of bodies of the Organization of American States.

His speech reflected heavy pressure here for a compromise between those advocating the sternest punishment of Cuba in the form of a collective break in relations, on the one hand; and the small but influential go-slow or do-nothing blocs led by Brazil, Mexico and Argentina, on the other.

The speech suggested the United States had held some of its fire purposely to test the atmosphere and ascertain what maximum can be expected here.

Four-Pronged Attack

Rusk asked the OAS foreign ministers to adopt a four-pronged attack — evidently representing what the United States now considers it can expect out of this conference before it ends next week.

Rusk proposed that the inter-American foreign ministers:

1. Declare Castro communism is incompatible with the inter-American system.

2. Exclude the Havana government from participation in agencies of the Organization of American States.

3. End Western Hemisphere trade with Cuba, especially traffic in arms.

4. Set in motion individual and collective defense measures "against the various forms of political and indirect aggression mounted against the hemisphere."

"The time has come for the American republics to unite against Communist intervention in this hemisphere," Rusk said.

U.S. spokesmen insist their delegation came here with no fixed goals. They say they consider that if the program is adopted it will represent a strong stand in condemning and attempting to quarantine Castroism.

It was weaker than the stand taken by Colombia, or originally by all the Central American

Good Weather Predicted for Glenn's 'Day'

Forecast Increases Hopes for Manned Orbital Space Shot

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Good rocketry weather is forecast for Saturday, strengthening hopes that astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. will take his historic triple whirl around the globe that day.

If he doesn't get off then, there could be another extensive delay. An official forecast issued this morning, said favorable conditions in the Atlantic area are expected to end in the next few days, but probably will extend through Saturday.

It's highly important, for a man bound on such a great adventure, to have good clear weather near the launch site, plus gentle seas and good visibility at the points where he is to come down.

Tracking Difficulty

In foul weather optical instruments would have difficulty tracking him, and rescue teams might have trouble fishing him out of the ocean when he alights.

Depending on whether he makes one, two or three orbits around the earth, Glenn is expected to come down in different places in the Atlantic.

The long countdown looking toward Glenn's space adventure will be started at 7 a. m. Friday. The countdown marks the checking and rechecking of innumerable factors that spell success or failure in an orbital attempt.

The count will extend over a period of 500 minutes—2-1-3 hours but instead of being continuous it will be split into segments.

Final Hours

The final five hours will begin early Saturday. This segment includes two hours of surplus time programmed in an effort to allow time to correct any trouble that might develop and still get the shot away on schedule at 7:30 a. m. If no trouble develops, these two hours will be consumed with automatic "holds" in the countdown.

If all goes well, the Marine lieutenant colonel will be boosted on his historic mission to explore space between 7:30 a. m. and 12:30 p. m.

Muzzling Hearing Should Get Hotter

Gen. Trudeau Shows Examples Of 42 Speeches Which Were Cut Before He Gave Talks

Chicago Daily News Service
WASHINGTON — A Senate investigation of charges that military officers have been muzzled is now moving into what the critics obviously regard as a meaty stage.

They presumably hope to prove a case that the State Department has been "soft on communism," as illustrated by the cuts it made in the speeches of military officers and the reasons it has cited for making them.

The public can count on a heavy diet in the days and weeks ahead of examples similar to those experienced by Lt. Gen. Arthur G. Trudeau.

This ruddy-complexioned chief of army research and development, who must be one of the talkiest men in the Defense Department, now has sample cuts and comments from 42 speeches included in the record of the Senate hearings.

They were among the speeches he delivered during the first year of the Kennedy Administration. Two of the 42 seemed to Sen. Strom Thurmond (D-S.C.) to have a particular bearing on the case he wants to make.

Asks Explanation
Thurmond, incidentally, has promised not only that there will be lots more examples such as those of Trudeau but that the censors who made the cuts will be called for an explanation.

"Read this on page 14, here," said Thurmond in his heavy Carolina drawl. "This is typical of what I call the 'no win' policy of the State Department. We didn't win in Korea, for instance."

The State Department reviewer had suggested that Gen. Trudeau in a speech to retired diplomatic and consular officers on March 8, 1961, amend it to read "witness the steady advance of Sino-Soviet communism for over a century. . . ." Trudeau had left out "Sino-Soviet" in his original phrasing.

The other example Thurmond chose to emphasize was in a speech Trudeau gave before an armed forces celebration in Boston on May 17. This was a mandatory change, requiring the general to substitute the words "Sino-Soviet" for "world." As rephrased, it read: "already one-third of the world's peoples are enslaved in the chains of Sino-Soviet communism."

Discourage Term
"We want to discourage the term 'world communism,'" said the State Department comment. "It sounds very pessimistic and also, to some, pleasantly international, like the U.N."

The way Thurmond sees it, however, it should be called "world communism," and the reluctance of the State Department to designate it as such gets "to the very heart of this situation."

"Could it be that this represents a policy of trying to get along with Tito and the other communists who aren't tied to Moscow?" a reporter inquired.

"The State Department witnesses may be able to explain," Thurmond snapped.

Examples of Trudeau's attempts to equate socialism with communism were also cited in the lengthy record. For instance, it was suggested that he delete the phrase, "on such theories socialism thrives." The State Department comment about this recommended change was "some of our best friends are socialists."

This was the period, they said, when the new administration was attempting to determine whether it could take some of the heat out of U.S.-Soviet relations and carry on a dialog in less strident tones than before.

No Progress
If Thurmond entertains hopes that examples of the speech cuts will compel a scrapping of the policy of reviewing speeches by military officers, he has not made much measureable progress yet.

For while former President Eisenhower may have had a sudden conversion to the Thurmond viewpoint, every other major figure who has taken a stand to date supports a continuation of the historic policy.

President Kennedy, for example, came down strongly in favor of it in his latest news conference. At the same time, he mentioned with approval the positions taken by former Defense Sec. Robert Lovett, Gen. Thomas D. White (ret.), Adm. Arleigh Burke (ret.), (both of whom suffered cuts at the hands of the reviewing officers), and Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff.

In what could have been a barbed thrust at Sen. Thurmond, the President said he felt that military officers appreciated this problem "better than some civilians."

Mr. Kennedy's praise of Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss.), chairman of the special subcommittee that is conducting the hearings, was also interpreted as a possible shaft at Thurmond who high pressured the Senate into approving the investigation.

Stennis, like Mr. Kennedy, feels there is a vital need for the review policy to be continued so that our 1,247 admirals and generals will speak with "one voice" and not confuse either our friends or foes. He also feels that the principal responsibility of the military is to "prepare for war and win if it comes."

He has refused to allow the hearings to be televised and is winning a reputation for his success, to date at least, of keeping any circus atmosphere out of them.

Billy Graham Will Continue His Crusade in Venezuela

MARACAIBO, Venezuela (AP)—Billy Graham says he will go through with his plans to preach in Barranquilla, Colombia, this weekend although the mayor there has denied him use of the municipal stadium. The meetings Saturday and Sunday will be held at the Presbyterian Mission.

The American evangelist said he expects his crusade in predominantly Roman Catholic Colombia will be among the best and most interesting he has ever held.

"This could be a demonstration of Christian tolerance in keeping with the new spirit emanating from Pope John," said Graham, a Baptist clergyman.

The mayor of Barranquilla withdrew permission for Graham to speak in the stadium after the local Roman Catholic hierarchy protested that Protestant preaching outside private church property was illegal in Colombia. Graham said he understood that law applied only to country districts

U. S. to Urge Moderation on Angola Issue

Stevenson Will Address U.N. on Colony Question

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson goes before the General Assembly today to urge moderation in dealing with the explosive situation in Portugal's West African colony of Angola.

Sources close to the U.S. delegation said Stevenson would caution delegates against approving drastic measures against Portugal that might involve the world body in "an impossible situation."

A U.S. spokesman indicated Stevenson would spell out his government's position on a proposal by 40 Asian and African states calling on Portugal to end repressive measures in Angola and start the West African colony toward independence.

Back Resolution
The United States is expected to support the resolution, which is virtually assured overwhelming approval by the 104-nation assembly. It already has support of the 51 Asian-African bloc, the 9-nation Soviet bloc and most of the 20 Latin-American states.

The United States has made plain it opposes a rival proposal by Poland and Bulgaria which calls for condemnation of Portugal and asks the Security Council to consider punitive charges against the Lisbon regime.

Despite U.S. support for the Asian-African draft, Britain and France are expected to abstain on it as they did on a much milder Angola resolution passed by the assembly last April. That proposal, which also won U.S. backing, called for reforms in Angola to end alleged violations of human rights.

Women Prisoners Can Have Choice in Style For Their Uniforms

KINGSTON, Ont. (AP)—Inmates of the Federal Prison for Women here now have their choice of eight different styles of uniform in a variety of colors instead of the traditional blue-gray stripes.

The only woman member of the National Parole Board, Mary L. Lynch, defended the innovation Wednesday night. She said the women had developed pride in their appearance and their morale was better.

Most criticism, she added, came from her own sex but that didn't surprise her. "I've discovered males have more sympathy for inmates than females," she commented.

OAS Governments Turn Anti-Castro

Mexican Minister Produces Surprise by Denouncing Cuba

Chicago Daily News Service
PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay—Some members of the U. S. delegation are fearful that the outcome of the special Inter-American conference here may seem to be a big letdown to the people back home. But if everything goes off as presently planned—or hoped is perhaps a better word—the results may prove to be somewhat of an improvement over what might have been expected a year or more ago.

Painfully, almost agonizingly, a few of the key countries in the hemisphere are beginning to admit that the time is fast approaching when Fidel Castro's communist Cuba must be branded as an outcast. But they want to do it in their own slow, deliberate and often exasperating way—if we are to judge such things by U. S. standards.

The major surprise in this connection came when Mexican Foreign Minister Manuel Tello said yesterday that it was as "incompatible" for a Marxist-Leninist country such as Cuba to belong to the Organization of American States as it would for a monarchy to hold membership in the same group. He went far back into early 19th century history to cite the formation of the first Pan-American Union by the Liberator Simon Bolivar, who decreed that any member which changed from the republican form of government would automatically be excluded from the union.

Tello Speaks
Tello then went on to point out that at the Santiago, Chile, Inter-American conference a few years back Cuba had agreed to a declaration that the democratic system in the Western Hemisphere envisaged free elections, the supremacy of law and fundamental respect for individual human rights.

Any government which does not adhere to the principles of representative democracy, said Tello, has no right to membership in the OAS.

Made It Clear
Mexico thus made it clear that she is prepared to go along with any legal move to oust the present Cuban regime from membership in the inter-American organization. But it was typical of the Latin American way of doing things that he stuck to Mexico's original contention that the presidential conference is not legally competent to pass on the question of Cuba's ouster from the OAS or to consider political or economic sanctions against Cuba.

As matters are now shaping up, however, the United States and other countries favoring Cuba's suspension from the OAS are here and in Caracas. An aide said drafting plans to get around such objections.

The latest such plan would of Christ, Venezuela was the even for a simple resolution calling for Cuba's suspension and leave it up to the permanent council of the tions with Cuba, it would be an almost meaningless gesture. Cuba's trade with all of Latin America amounts to a scant $7,000,000, roughly 2 per cent of her total world trade.

Less than 18 months ago when the American foreign ministers last met to consider the Cuban question, the United States was able to put through a resolution deploring the possibility of communist intervention in the hemisphere, but couldn't persuade anyone to mention Cuba by name in the resolution.

The situation has changed considerably and for the better this time.

True enough, nobody here is going to agree to military action to clobber the Castro regime once and for all—but then nobody, not even the United States, asked for that.

The way the Latins look at it, it's up to Uncle Sam to undertake that job when he thinks the time is ripe and can make it appear that Cuba was the aggressor rather than the United States.

'I Quit'
The chances are that under such circumstances Castro probably would withdraw Cuba from the OAS, saying in effect, "You can't fire me, I quit."

It is no wonder that the Cubans, who had long hailed Mexico as one of their few steadfast friends left in the Latin American community, sat grimly on their hands when Tello finished his speech.

In many respects suspending Cuba from the OAS would be a far more drastic action than the imposition of political or economic sanctions.

Political sanctions would require the seven nations still maintaining diplomatic relations with Cuba—Mexico, Argentina, Ecuador, Brazil, Chile, Bolivia and Uruguay—to break off the ties. But Cuba would still retain a seat and a vote in the OAS just as the Dominican Republic did after political sanctions were imposed against it.

As for the Latin American nations breaking off economic rela-

Kennedy Defends Two Charged by Reporter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy came swiftly and curiously risks. Both were reported vigorously to the defense of two now assigned to the Office of State Department officials de-scribed by a woman reporter in a news conference question as "well-known security risks."

In a dramatic exchange Wednesday, the President not only vouched for the security status of the pair but rebuked the reporter. He told Sarah McClendon, Washington representative for several Texas and New England newspapers, that she was using "a very strong term which I would think that you should be prepared to substantiate."

The President said he was familiar with the status of the two men — William Arthur Wieland and J. Clayton Miller — and declared they can carry out the duties assigned to them in the State Department "without detriment to the interest of the United States."

Spoke Sharply
He sharply told Mrs. Cien-don he hoped they could do so "without detriment to their character by your question."

Mrs. McClendon touched off the exchange when she said "two well known security risks" recently had been put on a task force in the State Department to help reorganize the Office of Security.

Within a few hours a State Department spokesman added to the President's comments at another news conference, declaring that the two men had neither been charged nor found to be security risks. Both were reported vigorously to the defense of two now assigned to the Office of State Department officials de-scribed by a woman reporter in a news conference question as "well-known security risks."

The ticklish nature of the episode led the National Broadcasting Co. to delete the exchange from its taped broadcast of the presidential news conference. The network said it had been told by the White House press secretary, Pierre Salinger, that the exchange was not legally privileged.

Carried in Full
Both the American Broadcasting Co. and the Columbia Broadcasting System aired the conference in full, however, and other news media carried full reports. Neither Wieland nor Miller could be reached for comment.

Later Lincoln White, State Department press officer, called in reporters and quoted Jones as giving the State Department's assurances that Wieland and Miller had neither been charged nor found to be security risks.

Reciprocal Trade Means Lower Tariff on Imports

Some U. S. Businesses to Seek Protection Under 'Escape Clause'

BY EDWIN A. LAHEY
Chicago Daily News Service

WASHINGTON — What is reciprocal trade? You may as well get used to this question.

President Kennedy sends his foreign trade message to Congress today. And the President's desire to beef up foreign trade will be a matter of lively discussion for months to come.

Sometimes "reciprocal trade" is a simple thing like horseradish. Some people who grow horseradish down around Granite City, Ill., feel that we are a little too reciprocal about foreign horseradish. So they asked the U. S. Tariff Commission for protection under the "escape clause" of our highly involved tariff law.

The commission, a group of men with a bureaucracy of 324 people and a budget of $2,950,000, studied the plight of the Granite City horseradish growers, held public hearings, and decided against any added protection for U. S. horseradish.

Horseradish Man

I telephoned the secretary of the tariff commission to find out where this horseradish came from to threaten the industry around Granite City. The girl in that office gave an answer that saved an otherwise bad day.

"You'll have to talk to our horseradish man, Mr. Leihand," she said.

This gentleman then explained that the foreign horseradish came from Japan and that the duty on it was 1½ cents per pound. The Granite City horseradish growers find this duty inadequate to protect them from cheap competition, so naturally they don't think much of "reciprocal trade."

Under the Smoot-Hawley Tariff Act of 1930, American producers had a high protective wall. This is still the basic tariff law, but it has been modified many times in a generation of "reciprocal trade" agreements and other acts that have loosened the channels of foreign trade since 1934.

Lonely Employee

To the 200 inhabitants of Antler, N. D., within walking distance of the Canadian border the phrase "reciprocal trade" reminds them of a lonely employee of the cork legs or cork pipe covering the duty is only 5 cents.

Difficult Dolls

Pool balls, which used to have a duty of 50 per cent of their value, now get in at half that rate, or 25 per cent ad valorem.

A load of dolls, whether they appear in Antler, the port of New York, or San Francisco, really takes it out of a customs man.

According to his book, if the dolls are composed "in any part of all overs, edgings, flouncings, flutings, fringes, galleons, gimps, neck ruffings or rucklings" made of lace, they come in at a reduced duty of 38 per cent of their value.

Under the original tariff act, these dolls would carry a 90 per cent duty.

This is "reciprocal trade." And for a plant making dolls with lace galleons and gimps and rucklings in Brooklyn, the competition is a little rough.

Benign Institution

But a company in Milwaukee or Cincinnati, busy with orders for machine tools for Japanese factories, would regard "reciprocal trade" as a benign institution.

The customs man up in Antler and elsewhere must keep a list of hundreds of items that come into the country duty free.

The duty-free items easiest to remember are ice, cuttlefish bone, hides of India water buffalo, nutmeg, vomica, and sarsaparilla root.

The expansive bureaucracies which administer our tariff laws are going to have a new set of guide books before the 1962 discussion on foreign trade has died down.

Elks Lodge to Sponsor Drive Against Polio

KAUKAUNA—The Elks Lodge, with Dave Heindel as chairman, again will be responsible for the March of Dimes drive in the city.

The first special event is planned Saturday when the American Legion will conduct a "toll bridge" over the Lawe Street span.

Motorists will be stopped for donations and will receive cards indicating they have contributed to the drive. Although no quota has been set, Heindel hopes the effort will exceed the 1961 total of $2,197.

Students from the Youth Center will canvass the city Feb. 4 for donations after which they will be treated to refreshments at the Elks clubrooms. Other promotions planned include a bowling benefit, teen dance, booster basketball game and possibly a "tag-day sale." The drive will continue through February.

March of Dimes Talent Show at Hollandtown Set

HOLLANDTOWN—The Town of Holland will sponsor its annual Talent Show and dance for the National March of Dimes Foundation at Van Abel's at 8 p. m. Sunday.

The affair will open with a talent show with Robert Lloyd as master of ceremonies. Major talent donating services for the occasion include Jack Staley, Kaukauna, magician, Leo Rohan, singer from Kaukauna, and the Kimlinks, a girls' singing group from Kimberly. Other performers will present dances, songs and play musical instruments.

Following the program Leroy's Dutch Boys will play for a dance which will continue until 1 a. m. The orchestra plays for the minimum fee permitted under Union regulations.

Other high scores were hit by Lee Anderson (201) and Roger Potter, Ann Seif and Mary Dahms (185).

Use of Defunct Unit's Stationery Ended by Court

A former Kimberly man who now operates a religious curios shop at Necedah, has been ordered by Juneau County Judge William R. Curran to stop using stationery of a defunct organization which formerly backed a "good reading" program.

Ray Schellhout, who operated a barbershop in Kimberly for many years, had used the stationery in gram Keith Grilley, Elroy, Ju writing to an assemblyman last year in supporting the parochial school bus bill, which has passed the legislature and now is awaiting action by Gov. Nelson.

Among the names on the letter-head was "Juneau County Council, American Legion Youth Committee, Endorsers of the American Legion."

Judge Curran said the action was taken because of "unauthorized use of stationery affecting the American Legion."

We Need a County Park Commission

The Airport and Parks Committee of the Outagamie County Board has recommended, wisely we think, that it be relieved of its responsibility for operating the county's park system. It agrees with a group of park-minded citizens that the parks should be operated under a commission created by, and reporting to, the County Board.

Certainly it makes no sense to lump the park system and the airport under one committee. Operating an airport is a specialized business, and the airport that Outagamie County hopes to have soon is going to take the full attention of the five supervisors who serve on the committee. In fact, the job may be too big even for them, and the board may have to consider creating an airport commission before it is through.

The county park system consists of Plamann Park, a few miles north of Appleton, the historic Grignon Home in Kaukauna, and—technically at least—Black Otter Park at Hortonville. As an article in Sunday's Post-Crescent pointed out, progress in developing Plamann Park has been disappointingly slow. As we have reported on a number of occasions, the Grignon Home never has been fully restored to make it the historical shrine it should be. The story of Black Otter Park is almost funny: The county took title to it in the early 1950's because Hortonville people wanted some county money for it and the county could legally provide the $5,000 requested only if it owned the park; then the county tried to give the park back to Hortonville but the village refused to accept it. As a result Black Otter Park still is listed as part of the county park system although no money has been spent on it since that time (a sum of $500 has been included in the 1962 budget for it).

The county park problem actually is a considerably larger one than the foregoing description would indicate. It is really part of a larger problem faced by this and a number of other counties that have changed from primarily rural to primarily urban counties during the last several decades. Today over three-quarters of Outagamie County's population is urban, most of it concentrated in the southern part of the county in or near Appleton, Kaukauna and the Tri-Villages. Urban people need parks—not just tree-shaded areas with benches and some playground equipment, but parks designed for today's recreational needs.

A large urban population has many needs that rural people do not have and sometimes do not clearly understand. Historically the need for parks has been filled by cities and villages, but today this no longer is adequate, partly because a substantial proportion of the urban population lives outside the limits of such municipalities, and partly because the type of recreational park desired by people today cannot be developed inside the corporate limits of a city or village.

Thus the demand for more active development of Plamann Park, for example, is in the same category as the demand for a modern airport, regional planning, superhighways and the like. They all represent needs which counties more and more are being called upon to satisfy, and which must seem unfamiliar to some of the older rural supervisors who can remember when the chief demands on county government were for roads, bridges, schools and law enforcement.

We think the County Board should recognize this modern need by creating a park commission and providing it with the necessary funds to first develop Plamann Park the way it should be developed, then restore the Grignon Home the way it should have been restored long ago, and then to study further the park and recreational needs of the county. The call for a commission rather than another committee of the board simply recognizes the fact that the committee system of government is inadequate under today's conditions; the board can and should control such a commission but should not try to get all the work done through the efforts of its own members when there are public-spirited citizens willing and able to do this kind of work.

Conflict Among Reds

The newest official Russian blast against Vyacheslav Molotov is thoroughly confusing. After having been denounced and brought home in apparent disgrace, Molotov suddenly was reassigned to Vienna early in January. Few are foolish enough to believe there actually is any spreading around of Russian government positions to those whom Khrushchev does not approve. But exactly how serious and for what purpose is the rift within the Communist party?

Some optimistic observers insist that the basic conflict is between Reds in the Soviet Union and those in the Johnny-come-lately Communist nations. The inference is that Soviet leaders would prefer to settle for peaceful coexistence and for a nuclear stalemate with the West rather than risk Russia's so-called wealth and certainly its power in an effort to spread Communism by force. The Russian lack of interest in Communist aggression is cited as the reason for the cutting off of aid to Albania, something less than a real drive to get Red China admitted to the United Nations, a failure to turn over nuclear know-how to China, a willingness to agree to a neutral Laos and lack of support for North Viet Nam in its plans and attempts to take over South Viet Nam.

Certainly there is dispute. The Albanian Communist Party charged recently that Khrushchev was an anti-Marxist traitor whose efforts toward disarmament and peace benefited imperialism and colonialism. Red China has continued to support Albania despite the Russian disapproval.

But the conflict seems to be one of method rather than aim. Khrushchev, and those who hold sway in the Soviet Union, apparently feel that the technique of alteration threat and soothing syrup is the better way to spread the Communist doctrine; Red China and its followers would prefer the continued pressure of active aggression. The internal conditions of the countries give ample evidence of reasons for the differences. Russia is not wealthy or favored with a high standard of living by Western standards, but in comparison with the fortunes of the Red Chinese, it is the life bountiful.

The question of whether Khrushchev is in firm control of his party and his government and the status of Molotov could conceivably be further techniques in the Soviet effort to convince the free nations of peaceful intentions this time around. We have little doubt that the Russian leaders would prefer not to go to war with the West if they could feel secure at home and reasonably certain that Communism is on the advance in the rest of the world.

The result to the rest of the world of the internal dispute can be almost anything. As long as the West remains strong and continues to show that it will use its power to stop aggression, the non-nuclear nations are unlikely to wage an all-out attack. But we cannot permit infiltration by Communism either, as Soviet leaders apparently hope. Leadership of the Communist world might be more dangerous to us if it were in the hands of the Chinese but any sign of weakness in Europe would encourage the Russians to press harder as well.

We may take heart that there is not a united front in the Communist world. But the efforts of various Reds to prove their qualifications for leadership may be just as big a danger to us in the long run.

Ah, Progress!

There is a small island called Sein off the coast of Brittany. Its inhabitants are predominantly poor fishermen and, although the island is nominally French and no one has questioned it for centuries, the islanders never have paid any taxes. There was no real evasion or at least not any more than is common throughout France; Paris let them alone as long as they didn't make a big whoop and holler about it.

But the same insidious thing that is mainly the cause of the rise of taxes all over the United States finally struck the fishermen. As long as they didn't pay taxes,

Paris paid them no mind in the matter of services either. Somebody began figuring out that maybe the islanders were the losers—why not get some of the mainlanders to foot part of the bill for island improvements?

The Ministry of Finance agreed. A dispensary was set up on the island as a symbol of the government's good faith. And a collector is now busily at work showing the fishermen how to fill out income tax forms.

And so an era is over. Civilization and loss of innocence has reached another remote corner of the earth.

New Day for Buffalo—It's On Tax Rolls

From The Dairy Record

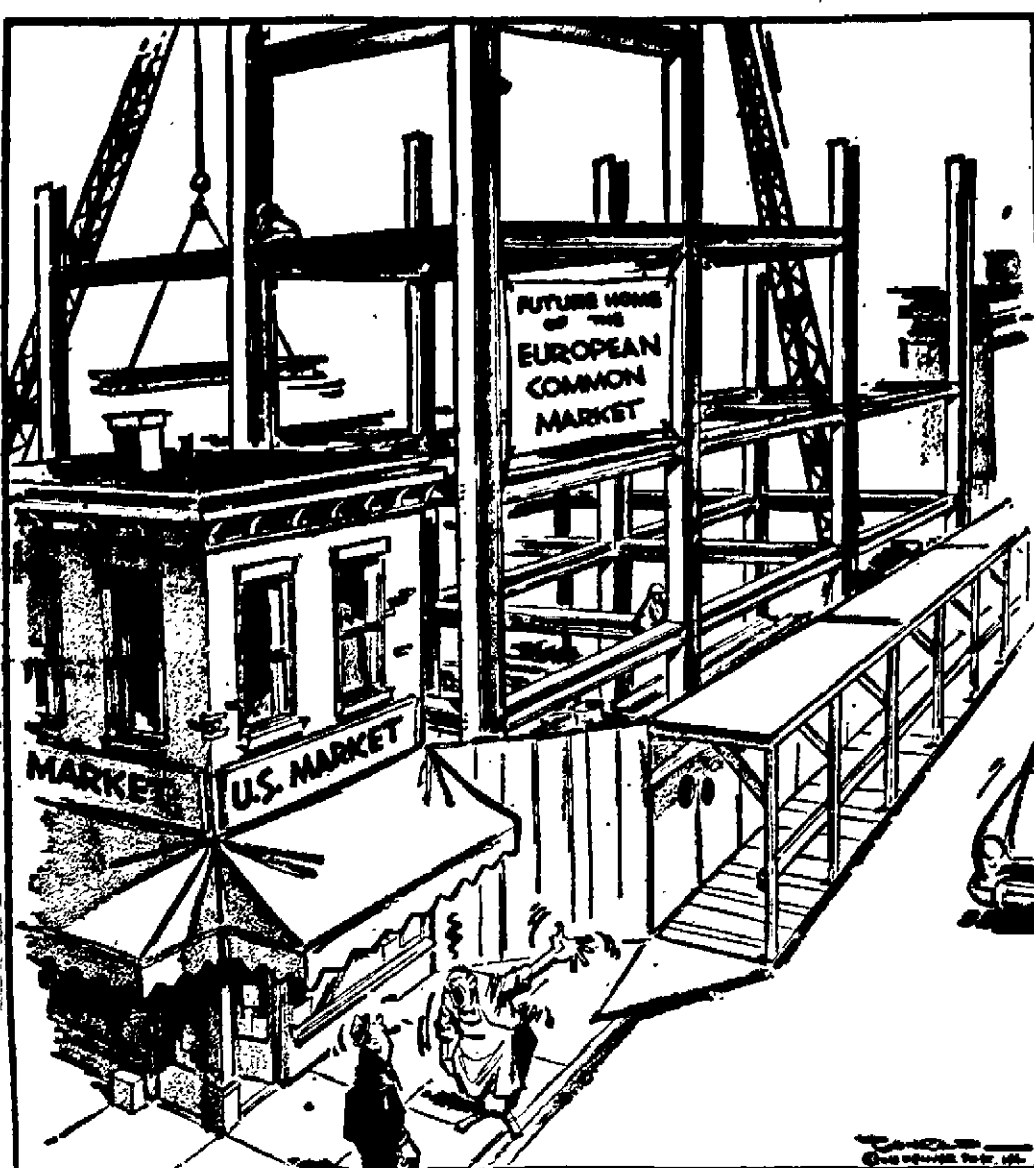

A new day is dawning for the buffalo. And like so many things, it appears that the new day has been lurking for some time.

A San Francisco company is planning to build up a herd of buffalo in Campbell County to be used for commercial purposes. Although it is this incident that placed new focus on the buffalo, its commercial possibilities have not been entirely overlooked in the past.

For over 50 years the Quentin-Marquis ranch near Gillette has raised buffalo for commercial hunting. In addition, a Cas-per meat-packing firm is already marketing buffalo steaks, roasts and salami, and is experimenting with buffalo wieners.

But perhaps the thing that has really put buffalo on the map is the fact the tax collector has made note of them. The state board of equalization has placed a $30 per-head assessment on the animals starting in 1962.

Facilities at Plamann, Calumet Parks Held Dangerous to Health

Editor, Post-Crescent:

I was most interested to read the history of Plamann Park in your Sunday edition. It is the only scenic piece of land (other than river frontage) within easy reach of Appleton. Mr. Plamann showed great foresight and generosity in donating it for park purposes. We have spent several pleasant days there, in the fall it is particularly beautiful. In summer the mosquitoes are so voracious as to be almost intolerable. Apart from mosquito control and possibly another well or two, the only change we would like to see would be the addition of respectable washroom facilities. The park is lovely in its natural state, too much 'grooming' would spoil it.

Ever since moving to Wisconsin some 18 months ago we have been surprised and disgusted at the lack of sanitary facilities in most non-city Wisconsin parks. In the very beautiful state from which we moved I never saw a state or county picnic or campground which did not have flush toilets in more abundance than Wisconsin has outhouses. The only pit toilets I had previously encountered were in private picnic grounds run for profit. Here these important items are either left till last or never provided.

At High Cliff Park, a tremendous amount has been spent for a marina for the lucky people who can afford a boat but we who just want a pleasant place to picnic have to face the stench of the 'pits' if nature calls. It seems there is always money to provide expensive facilities for boat owners but never for basic necessities.

This brings me to the biggest surprise of all in the "D" section of Sunday's paper. I had always assumed Calumet Park must be run on a very low budget by an impoverished county. It now appears they are running it as a profit-making organization! We know they do a beautiful job of mowing the grass but... we have stood in line beside the two ripest smelling outhouses in living memory on a hot weekend at Calumet, with three anxious children together with some twenty other mothers and possibly fifty other children. We have waited up to 30 minutes while people use them to change from bathing suits, and myriads of flies swarm around our heads. On entering these indescribable horrors the majority of children are nauseated to the point of tears or vomiting and have to take a hasty walk in the woods. Several mothers in these line-ups have said they would be more than willing to pay admission of 5 to 25 cents per car to help pay for more sanitary facilities. (We thought there was a lack of funds!)

Now we hear that not only did the Park Commission have over $10,000 in 1961 county appropriations, $9,000 plus left over from 1960 and $3,000 plus in other income but they had a record attendance and finished the year with over $12,000 balance! I hope they will not let another summer come without knowing just where to use this money. If they hesitate, I sincerely hope the public health officers in both Outagamie and Calumet Counties will start inspecting these facilities and insist on their condemnation before we have an outbreak of typhoid among the 770,000 people who camped or picnicked in Calumet Park alone in 1961 and who will presumably continue to use it. Americans are so proud of their hygiene at home I cannot understand how they can tolerate these conditions in public places.

Pressure Groups Bilk Citizens Out of Millions

From The Sheridan (Wyo.) Press

Perhaps it is because the people of the United States have become so accustomed to pressure groups that we have come to accept them as a fact of life. Either that is the case or we have become so punch drunk and supine that we no longer care to fight back. Whatever the reason, the taxpayers of the United States are being bilked out of millions of dollars each year because of our failure to fight pressures with counter pressures.

One of the most sickening examples of this has been the milk dating legislation in New York. As it will be recalled, the New York Legislature passed a bill eliminating the dating requirement, much to the displeasure of the milk drivers and inside workers union. There is all of the evidence in the world to support the proposition that milk dating is antiquated and totally unnecessary in these days. It is a costly burden that must be necessarily borne by the consumers, but that seemingly is of little concern to the unions.

Milk Dating

Elimination of milk dating meant the elimination of a few jobs and that was of paramount importance to union leaders. They and their indentured political cronies tried all brands of legal skulduggery to defeat the law.

Failing in this, they tried a different tack. Suddenly, for some unexplained reason, complaints of sour milk started to come into the New York City Health Department. The complaints, of course, were as phony as a pink three dollar bill.

Bend Over Pressure
Perhaps even more distressing and nauseating has been the action of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and Walter J. Mahoney, Senate majority leader, and other upstate legislators who favored the elimination of milk dating originally, but are now bending under the pressure brought by the unions.

The Meanings Behind Capitol Maneuvers

MADISON — The news from the principal state capitol offices in these days is as meaningful for the political designs of the principal office holders as it is in actual public affairs policy.

Gov. Nelson denounces the legislature for what he calls an unconstitutional invasion of his constitutional prerogatives.

Atty. Gen. Reynolds announces that he intends to appeal to the supreme court to force the legislative branch to perform its constitutional duty in the way of reapportionment of legislative districts.

Both incidents have some validity, the degree varying according to political persuasion.

But they can be understood best if it is remembered that both of these men also are contriving postures that they believe — or hope — will increase their stature as candidates in the election campaign a little later.

It is useful to remember also that the temptations for such publicity announcements are greater when the legislature is the antagonist. They can contrive effective publicity: the legislature cannot, and least of all when it is not in session.

THE ISSUES

The governor declares that when the legislature set up the artificial recess of its session until the day of the regular convening of the successor legislature, next January, it did so to frustrate his constitutional powers and responsibilities, such as the appointment of state officers during the legislative interim.

honey have come to regard the issue as a political liability and have found it expedient to change their position on the matter. The question of right or wrong apparently has little bearing; it becomes merely and solely a matter of re-election, so the governor will ask the 1962 legislature to authorize New York City to resume milk dating.

We can't quite imagine two other New York governors, namely Theodore Roosevelt and Alfred H. Smith, yielding to such pressure.

Present Federal Tax Laws Stifle Production Drive

From The Indianapolis News

Louis Shere, professor of economics and director of tax research at Indiana University, adds a voice of authority supporting those who say federal tax relief is necessary if the national economy is to advance instead of stagnate.

Despite the postwar burst of investment, Shere points out, plants and equipment are aging at a pace dangerous to America's competitive position in world markets "and our aspirations for security, expanding employment opportunities and rising living standards."

He advocates:

1. A more realistic approach

The governor perhaps has a point, although it will doubtless require a judicial determination. The recess device is not new. It has been used often before, and to some degree in the previous terms it interfered with the executive's prerogatives to appoint under the constitutional rule that a state officer must be confirmed by the senate, if it is in session, before he is qualified to serve. The question appears to be: When does a recess lose its recess character and become an illegal alternate for real adjournment?

The governor may very well have a point too when he complains that there is no constitutional warranty for the legislature's resolution providing for a reconvening upon a petition of most of its members. Maybe — but it is useful to remember that this has been done before too, and without a challenge.

DISTRICTING

Mr. Reynolds says the constitution requires reapportionment and that there are no two ways about it. He proposes to convince the state court that it has a duty to compel the legislature by writ to do its solemn duty as declared in the basic law legislators swore to uphold.

But, again, there is a suggestive background story. Other legislatures in the past ignored that identical constitutional mandate for far longer periods than the one year and nobody was able to devise a way to force it to do something that it chose not to do. Gov. Nelson, parenthetically, knows something about the constitutional background of this situation, since his own first essay in politics was in the form of a citizen's suit before the court in the mid-1930's to force legislative reapportionment action. He failed. The court said it could not impose its will upon another and co-equal branch of state government.

Courts can change their views, and often have. Indeed, the governor's case appears to be directly related to the attorney general's appeal. If the legislature has actually adjourned, as Nelson insists, then it has defaulted on the reapportionment issue. If its recess is valid, and the session remains alive, then the attorney general would likely have no case for it could yet act, theoretically, at least.

Cuba Might be Out of OAS Group

No One Certain What Effect Expulsion Would Have on Castro

BY ROBERT S. BOYD
Chicago Daily News Service

WASHINGTON — Kicking Cuba out of the Organization of American States would be a step in the right direction—even though it's not all the United States hoped for.

That was the general reaction in Washington to reports that giving Cuba the boot is the most likely outcome of the conference of foreign ministers in Punta Del Este, Uruguay.

Such a move would be an experiment in international ostracism. Nobody is sure just what practical effect it would have.

No country has ever been expelled from the OAS since it was created as a sort of junior "United Nations" of the Western Hemisphere in 1948.

Even the Dominican Republic stayed in the OAS after all 20 other members broke relations with the Trujillo dictatorship. The theory was that the OAS represents "states" instead of "governments."

Expulsion from the OAS is obviously a punishment more mental than physical.

Could Lose
Cuba could lose some minor material benefits.

For instance, the Pan-American Health Organization, an OAS affiliate, spends more than $200,000 a year in Cuba. Two thirds of that money comes from the United States.

Presumably the 49 Cuban citizens employed in the OAS and its associated organs would lose their jobs.

Cuba's ambassador to the OAS, Carlos Lechuga, Fidel Castro's last spokesman in Washington, would have to leave.

But the chief effect would be psychological.

Hopefully, it would give heart to Castro's foes inside Cuba—just as the OAS penalties against Rafael Trujillo helped encourage his enemies to assassinate him.

Expulsion might also further dim Castro's fascination for many Latin Americans, by underlining his alienation from the American system.

Hurt Himself

However, it probably would not hurt Castro as badly as he has hurt himself—such as by his Dec. 2 speech confessing he'd been a secret communist all along.

In fact, although Castro insists he wants to stay in the OAS, he has pretty much withdrawn Cuba from the inter-American system already.

Cuba hasn't paid its dues to the OAS since 1959, the year Castro came to power.

The Castro government owes $425,730 in overdue assessments, and is about to be billed another $237,707 for the 1963 fiscal year.

Unlike the United Nations, the OAS has no rule denying the right to vote to countries who fall too far behind in their dues.

Cuban officials have gone out of their way in recent months to insult the OAS. They often call it the "colonial ministry of the U. S. State Department."

As long ago as March, 1960, Castro said Cuba doesn't consider itself bound by the defense treaties which form the basis for the inter-American system.

Denied Access

Last April, the Cuban delegate to the inter-American defense board, an OAS organ, was denied access to secret papers and meetings because of the "evident military alliance of Cuba with the Soviet bloc."

Even people who want the OAS to vote diplomatic and economic sanctions against Cuba admit that these penalties are more symbolic than practical.

Cuba trades little with Latin America, for example. Her biggest customer and supplier was the United States, and we cut off 90 per cent of our trade a year and a half ago.

The only way to really hurt Castro physically is by armed invasion, stepped up aid to guerrillas and saboteurs, or a naval blockade, cutting off Cuba's lifeline to the Communist countries.

Nobody had expected the foreign ministers to go that far.

Cuba joined the OAS a charter member. It also belongs to a dozen OAS affiliates. These include the Inter-American Economic and Social Council, which is responsible for the $20 billion, U. S.-financed Alliance for Progress; the Pan-American Health Organization, and a bevy of "institutes," "councils" and "commissions" dedicated to women, children, Indians, statistics, agriculture, law, culture, geography and history.

President at His Best As He Meets Reporters

Kennedy Lambastes Republicans, Plugs for Milk Drinking, 'Flattens' Newswoman

BY JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy was at his best Wednesday, after a series of rather dull news conferences, with sharpness, humor, and a new kind of toughness.

His relaxed self-assurance was like the Kennedy of the early news conferences in 1961.

He plugged for milk and the 40-hour week and, in showing an extremely detailed knowledge of government, swiped at Republicans and discussed foreign trade, censoring the military, and his programs in Congress.

Reporter Flattened
But in 19 years of attending presidential news conferences, going back to Franklin D. Roosevelt's days, this writer has never seen a President flatten a reporter as severely as Kennedy did Wednesday.

He toughened visibly when a newswoman, bluntly accusing two State Department employees of being "well-known security risks," said they had just been given jobs involving security. Upon his request she named them.

He said he had examined the men's records and approved their assignments. Kennedy didn't ask the woman to back up her charge. But he said she should be able to do so.

Then, as a murmur swept through the big auditorium, Kennedy said he hoped the men's characters would not be damaged by her statement.

Kennedy moved easily through the questioning but it was in the political field that he provided the biggest surprise.

Refused Request
Not long before he met the press the House Rules Committee, one of the most powerful groups in Congress, had refused to approve his request for a new department of urban affairs and housing.

On this committee there are 10 Democrats and 5 Republicans. The vote against the new department was 9 to 6. Four Southern Democrats joined all five Republicans in turning Kennedy down.

Kennedy blandly ignored the fact that on this committee, where his Democrats outnumber Republicans two to one, the five Republicans couldn't have blocked him if four Democrats hadn't joined them.

Kennedy said he was "astonished" at the Republicans. Then he ripped into them but never mentioned the desertion of his own Southern Democrats.

Surprised Some
What was surprising about it was this: He has gone out of his way in the past few months to woo Republican support for his programs. On some of them he'll need such support in both House and Senate.

It could be taken for granted—since this is a congressional election year—that once Congress had finished next summer and the political campaign began that Kennedy would have taken some cracks at Republicans.

But for him to start shooting Wednesday was like beginning to hunt before the season opened. At the least it might only mean that he's just beginning to store up ammunition before the election begins.

Had Been Mild
He's been extremely mild with Republicans since he took office last year, too mild to please some critics who figure mildness never won anything and that if he wants to get his programs through he has to fight for them.

If Wednesday's attack really means the beginning of a new fighting Kennedy, this year's session of Congress will be more interesting than 1961, and so will Kennedy.

There must be something about milk that brings out the piz in Kennedy.

Two days ago at the National Conference on Milk and Nutrition after encouraging the public to drink milk, Kennedy reached into the desk he was using and came up with a big glass of milk. He drank it.

Wednesday, after putting in another plug for milk-drinking, he announced his press secretary, chubby Pierre Salinger, had had a glass of milk in the morning "with no adverse effect."

Administration Doesn't Want More Inflation

Economic Advisers
Tell Unions That They Can Get Raise

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The last thing the Kennedy Administration would really wish to do is to encourage inflation and a drop in the purchasing power of the dollar. The Administration nevertheless is, in effect, telling labor unions that they can demand the benefits of the savings made by machinery not only in their own industry but in other industries as well.

Lawrence

To note this surprising trend takes a careful reading of the "fine print" in the report of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, to which Mr. Kennedy gave his blessing when he commended it in a message to Congress this week. Basically, there is in it the mistaken belief that the economy can be managed by an application of doctrines and theories at variance with actual experience. Discussing collective bargaining and the setting of prices, the report says:

"The guideposts suggested here as aids to public understanding are not concerned primarily with the relation of employers and employees to each other, but rather with their joint relation to the rest of the economy. . . .

"Productivity is a guide rather than a rule for appraising wage and price behavior for several reasons."

Guide, Rule

Unfortunately, the difference between a "guide" and a "rule" vanishes when dogmatic statements about wage and price behavior are given the implied, if not explicit, approval of the White House. For, disregarding almost immediately their own broad approach, the economic advisers go on to state some rather definite principles as follows:

"It is desirable that labor and management should bargain explicitly about the distribution of the income of particular firms or industries. It is, however, undesirable that they should bargain implicitly about the general price level."

"Excessive wage settlements which are paid for through price increases in major industries put direct pressure on the general price level and produce spillover and imitative effects throughout the economy. Such settlements may fail to redistribute income within the industry involved; rather they redistribute income between that industry and other segments of the economy through the mechanism of inflation."

This appears to be a statement of what does happen as a consequence of labor demands, but the President's Council of Economic Advisers on the very next page of their report negate most of what they have advised. They introduce a contradictory definition which the labor unions will find stimulating. It is right down their alley, and reads as follows:

"The general guide for noninflationary wage behavior is that the rate of increase in wage rates — including fringe benefits — in each industry be equal to the trend rate of over-all productivity increase. General acceptance of this guide would maintain stability of labor cost per unit of output for the economy as a whole — though not of course for individual industries."

Quotes Editorial

The New York "Herald Tribune" in an editorial exposes the economic fallacy of this "general guide" as follows:

"If the average annual gain in productivity per man hour throughout the economy were to be taken as 3 per cent, then a 3 per cent annual hike in wages for each industry would be in order. For some industries this would represent a rise greater than productivity for others less, but on balance the average of unit labor costs would remain constant. What the report leaves out of its equations is the motive force behind the advances in productivity. These advances don't just happen by themselves."

"They have to be made to happen. And they are not made to happen by the hourly wage earners, who more likely will have fought them tooth and nail as threats to job security. They depend on the vision, skills and daring of technicians and entrepreneurs backed by the willingness of investors to gamble the needed capital."

"What mobilizes these forces is the hope of cutting unit labor costs, and thus either increasing profits directly or making the product more competitive by lowering its price. . . .

"It's not the man who is becoming more productive but the machine on which he works."

Not Inflationary

Yet the President's Council of Economic Advisers evidently thinks that to give to labor virtually all the savings of the added productivity need not be "inflationary" nor "disruptive of over-all price stability." But is;

Red Wall Having Bad Effects

Kennedy May Give Help to W. Berlin

BY EUGENE KRAMER

BERLIN (AP)— How long can West Berlin remain walled up without withering on the vine?

This question recently prompted President Kennedy to ask his personal envoy to the city, Gen. Lucius D. Clay, whether West Berlin needs any special help. The result has been more attention to U.S. investment in West Berlin.

A look at the map shows that the wall raised by the Communists last August to stop the flow of refugees is part of a curtain of concrete and barbed wire completely encircling West Berlin.

Red Pressure

Because they surround the city, the Communists can turn the pressure on and off at will. This raises the question whether the island can hold out economically.

There are conflicting views. But responsible Western authorities who monitor West Berlin's pulse say that it will take more than a wall against refugees to kill West Berlin economically.

If the Communists should ever raise a wall against goods and trade, that would be another and very serious matter.

The ever-present threat of such an economic wall is one reason Kennedy and other Western statesmen have suggested international control over the access routes to West Berlin.

Proposal Rejected

The East German Communists have rejected the proposal, which would end their present exclusive control over West Berlin's commercial traffic. However, they hardly interfered with the record volume of goods moving in and out of the isolated city last year.

East German Communist newspapers like to portray West Berlin as a ghost town. Their favorite propaganda photos show moving vans leaving West Berlin and "for rent" signs in empty windows along Kurfuerstendamm, the main street.

Tourists and West Berlin a bit quieter now than last summer, but the economic experts say business is healthy. Unemployment averages about 21,000 and the city of 2 1/2 million has a labor shortage. The raising of the Red Wall between East and West Berlin management expected to receive nothing additional in return for the money it has invested for labor-saving equipment? Evidently it is to be discouraged from raising its prices to get an added income. Thus, the report reaches its conclusion.

But when a disagreement between management and labor is resolved by passing the bill to the rest of the economy, the bill is paid in depreciated currency to the ultimate advantage of no one.

The net of it is that in cases where labor gets in wages more than the benefits of the increased productivity — as it so often demands and brings on a strike to achieve — it would appear to be all right to increase prices. But management, due to competitive conditions, often finds itself unable to raise prices. So presumably it should not pass on to the public the added labor cost and must instead face a reduction in profits and cut or omit dividends. That's hardly the way to run a successful business. As for unions, it's a green light for increased wage demands. It will hardly discourage big strikes and especially the threatened strike in the steel industry this summer.

(Copyright, 1962)

Orders for its foodstuffs, electric machinery and other major exports have shown only a very slight leveling off.

West Berlin's gross product—its total of goods and services—for 1961 is estimated at 13.2 billion marks—$3.3 billion. This is a 10 per cent gain from 1960 which in turn was 13 per cent over 1959.

Despite the ever-present threat of tighter Red controls, a total of about 17 million tons of goods moved in and out of West Berlin by truck, train and barge last year.

One reason for so little Communist interference is the inter-zonal trade agreement under which West and East Germany sell each other about $250 million worth of goods a year. The Communist East German regime knows that interference with the trade lanes to West Berlin could cut the flow of badly needed steel, machinery and chemicals it gets from West industrial city of all Germany.

Many Quiz Showmen's New Jobs Hurt by Scandals

Producers Had Roughest Time; but Stars Back in TV or Allied Fields

BY RALEIGH ALLSBROOK
NEW YORK (AP)—The television scandals of 1958 knocked the big quiz shows off the air, but many who worked on the programs apparently came through without any lasting harm. The producers found the going the roughest and some of them have faded completely from sight. For the quizmasters and masters of ceremony who always insisted they had no knowledge of the rigging things were easier. Many are still in television or allied fields. Although 18 contestants were charged with perjury in the rigging, criminal charges were brought against only one employee of the shows.

Suspended Sentences
All of the contestants pleaded guilty—the last on Monday—to now is president and supervising falsely denying to a grand jury that they received advance help in answering questions, and all were freed with suspended sentences. The only program employee indicted was Albert Freedman, an associate producer of the show executives and the advertising “Twenty-one” He was accused of fraternity who passed the buck, fastened the blame on people who were just doing their jobs.”

Hal March on Stage
Hal March, onetime M. C. for “The $64,000 Question,” has become an actor on the legitimate stage and is currently appearing in the Broadway production of “Come Blow Your Horn.” Dan Enright, Barry’s former partner in TV production work and also onetime supervising producer of “The Tac Dough,” now is in the film production business. His full length feature, “Blast of Silence,” was released recently. He plans to start filming “Idyll” in England this spring. Mervyn Koplin, an associate producer of “The $64,000 Question,” and “The $64,000 Challenge,” is back in television as producer of “P. M. East,” a syndicated taped show.

In University Post
The network official who quit in 1959 was Louis Cowan, head of the Columbia Broadcasting System’s television operations. He said then that he was forced out because of an innocent association with “The $64,000 Question” which he originated as an independent TV producer before he went with the network. Cowan now is director of the Blandeis University communications research center in Massachusetts.

PET DOCTOR
By A. W. Molner, D.V.M.

Q. I have a pet Chameleon. Usually he eats such things as flies, bumble bees, spiders, etc. What do I feed him during the winter months? Brian Bankowski, Hamilton, Ont.

A. The easiest thing to feed your Chameleon during the winter will be meal worms or food flies. Both are available at pet stores or you may want to start your own colony. Your local zoo may cause constipation. So you can probably tell you where to get the foundation stock. Meal with a little banana, peach or dust or bran flour in a tin box, provided you supply some thinly sliced potato or raw apple for moisture. Food flies can be raised

To Your Good Health

Constipation Usually Caused By What One Doesn't Eat

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.
Dear Dr. Molner: Should a person who occasionally gets constipated refrain from eating cheese (cream or cottage excepted) and not drink milk? What should one not eat? What is good to help a natural daily movement? Do you approve of milk of magnesia once in a while?—A S

Molner

The widely repeated theory that cheese causes constipation is just as wrong as the equally popular rumor that it will cure diarrhea in a glass jar with some sweetener, cooked cereal to which a little yeast has been added. Don't forget that too many meal worms can cause constipation. So you may have to supplement the diet with a little banana, peach or grapes. (Dr. Molner will send books on pet care to readers submitting best questions. Mail yours on a postcard in care of this paper.)

The latter, I know, is a dearly loved fable in the army. It is my belief that those who manage to beg a hunk of cheese from the mess sergeant recover no more quickly—and no more slowly—than those who don't.

Constipation is not a matter of refraining from eating any particular foods. There is NO food that causes constipation.

Sufficient Bulk
Rather, it is caused by what one does NOT eat. Not eating regularly or not eating enough—as so often is the case with older and inactive people—is an invitation to constipation. Not eating foods with sufficient bulk is another which will be worth reading for other Bulk is cellulose or other material which is not absorbed by the digestive tract and hence simply moves happily on through. Whole fruits and vegetables are quite rich in bulk and are the best source of it. Such things as bran are bulk also, but may be irritating if used in excess.

Most people with constipation are poor water drinkers. I've had plenty of letters, not mentioning nose isn't caused by teeth—direct comments, from people who, after fooling themselves with all sorts of odd theories, finally accepted my simple advice and found relief within a week or two after they began drinking enough water. Whether they got it in soup, coffee, milk, or other sources (including fruit in juice form or, preferably, whole) doesn't make any great difference. Liquid and bulk, or bulk and liquid, are the best of all possible answers to constipation.

Occasional Use
In addition, regularity of habit is of no small importance. As to milk of magnesia, if (as is understandable) one occasionally gets into a bit of trouble, it's very helpful. But remember that I said “occasionally.” If it becomes a regular necessity, then something else is wrong. I could go on explaining this further, but I've already done it in a booklet “Stop Constipation,” will be sent to any reader in return for a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover printing and handling costs. Address your requests to Dr. Molner in care of this newspaper.)

of things because it's such a handy excuse. True, it can make a child drooly and fretful. But a runny nose is more likely due to a cold or an allergy.

Dear Dr. Molner: During my early teens something strange happened to my voice. Until then I had been a coloratura soprano with a wide voice range. Then, after a series of sore throats, my voice changed, and now it will break on certain notes.—J. K.

A “series of sore throats” could have caused some scarring of the vocal cords. Further, it's well to remember that some young women develop a somewhat deeper voice after adolescence, the same as boys do, except not so much.

Have a specialist check the throat to see whether the vocal cords have been scarred, or if there are polyps or nodules that might have had an effect. (Copyright, 1962)

The Golden Years
Pick Retirement Home
With Head, Not Heart

BY THOMAS COLLINS
"My advice to those who are about to retire: select your retirement home with your head and not your heart. If you select it because of nearness to your children, you will find that the grandchildren soon grow up, leaving you on the sidelines, wondering how you got there."

Collins

"You will find that the young folks develop their own friends and interests very soon, and have no fun visiting old folks who now want only to sit and rest."

"And finally you will find that at some point after retirement you will begin to feel run-down and that aches and pains begin to catch up with you..."

Thus speaks a man who got his pension about three years ago and set out on a "dream retirement." He had been a railroad engineer (Baltimore & Ohio). He and his wife lived in Pittsburgh.

Shangri-La
"After retiring early in 1959, we got in our car," he says, "and went looking for our Shangri-La. It had to be near an Armed Service base because I had been connected with the Army for many years and was entitled to the benefits that go with an Army retirement."

"We traveled for 9,000 miles, looking for our Shangri-La, criss-crossing 17 states in the process. We went as far as the northwest area of California."

"But we found no place to park. So late in 1959 we were back in Pittsburgh. And then, on a fishing trip to Conneaut Lake, Pa., we discovered 'Half-Pint Farm'."

"It was two miles away from the lake, and the lake could be seen from the house. There was a ten-mile view to the east and the north. To the east, less than a mile away, was another farmhouse. To the north, about the same distance, was still another. To the west was a neighbor about a city block away."

And with all this, Half-Pint Farm was located on a U.S. highway... had an acre and a half of lawn, gardens, strawberry patches, grapes, pears, peaches, cherries, plums, apples, shade trees and flower beds. Two other lakes and four golf courses were only a few minutes away by car.

Full of Zip

Public transportation was lacking, and medical care was scarce. Still it was a splendid spot for retirement. Or so it seemed. "When we bought the place I was just past 65," the ex-engineer says. "I was full of zip and go. I tore into Half-Pint Farm and made a showplace of it. I came to know people all around the area. I organized the Retired Club of Conneaut Lake. And meanwhile we were playing host on our farm to friends and relatives from elsewhere in Pennsylvania."

"But two years have gone since retirement. Our steam is getting lower. Aches and pains that we hadn't figured on have begun to show up. The chores of Half-Pint Farm grow difficult."

And the ex-engineer and his wife have decided to call it quits. "We are putting the place up for sale, and heading for a Shangri-La that is in a warmer climate... and near an Armed Service base. We will go as far as Long Beach, Calif., by way of Florida, Texas and Arizona, with maybe a look at South Carolina."

Fine 25 Years Ago

"A dream place like Half-Pint Farm would have been fine 25 years ago, with a family of children to help care for the place and to help eat all the fruit and vegetables the place will produce."

"At age 65 it looked good too, when we looked with our hearts instead of our minds. Two years after retirement it looked like we ought to move..."

To you who are retired, and who are about to retire, this case history of the ex-engineer should not be discouraging. Rather, it should impress you one more of the pitfalls of retirement, and thus enable you to formulate your own plans with a little more wisdom.

It doesn't take much to convert retirement into the Golden Years. Mostly, it's a matter of avoiding mistakes. The mistakes of the ex-engineer, which is fairly common, is one to avoid.

Milwaukee Tops in Baby Total for Cities
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Milwaukee metropolitan produced more babies in proportion to its population than any other except Minneapolis-St. Paul during 1960, the U.S. Public Health Service reported.

Births in the Milwaukee-Waukesha County complex amounted to 26.2 per thousand, compared to the Twin Cities' 27.5. Waukesha County alone had a rate of 27.4.

In half of Wisconsin's counties, the number of births declined between 1950 and 1960. Forest County had only 52 in 1960 compared jumped from 4,289 to 6,330 in the with 89 in 1950. Dane County same periods.

World Groups Aid Tibetan Children

Youngsters Have Many Serious Needs, Living Conditions are Cold, Crowded

BY DAVE MEADE
Chicago Daily News Service

DHARMSALA, Punjab, India—The little ones are stacked side-ways in bunks, make-shift beds or on the stone floor, five and six to a row.

They have runny noses. Many are coughing.

They are beautiful.

The older ones, still awake, smile shyly as they stand in line to be seen by night visitors to the transit camp for children of Tibetan refugees.

There are 450 children here, from tiny infants to young teenagers, some orphaned or half-orphaned, others brought by parents working on roads and similar refugee projects throughout India.

The camp is under the supervision of Mrs. Tsering Dolma, sister of the Dalai Lama whose nearby headquarters-in-exile overlooks the 6,000-foot-high town of Dharmasala in northern India.

Two English Girls

Caring for the children, who live in three buildings according to age groups and have their meals from a common kitchen, are Tibetan "ayahs" or nurse-teachers and workers, and two English girls.

They are Valerie Hagger of Cambridge, a nurse, and Dianna Grimley of Epsom, a teacher.

Save-The-Children Fund is paying both volunteers from an organization known as Service Civil International (SCI).

SCI, which has branches in various countries and works with refugees and depressed people around the world, was founded in 1920 in France as an international "peace corps." Its world headquarters is in Zurich, Switzerland.

Party of Visitors

The party of visitors to this "little Tibet" included Walter S. Kilpatrick, Geneva, Switzerland, director of service to refugees for the World Council of Churches, as pencils, paper, blackboards, and J.S.S. Malelu, a retired educator from New Delhi who serves as relief director for the National Christian Council of India, and the Rev. J. T. Crozier of Roslyn, Dunedin, New Zealand.

Valerie, the young nurse, showed them around.

She stopped at the bed of a tiny sleeping infant.

"The father just brought the baby here," she said. "The mother died."

"Every day the number increases. The parents come a long way. They're all over India."

Despite the cold and crowded conditions that cause ailments constantly to sweep through the living quarters, only one child had died since the nurse arrived several months ago.

Need Blankets

"But there aren't enough blankets," Valerie said.

There is no heating system.

The children subsist on one bowl of dahl (grain soup) and maw maw — a doughy bread — per day.

In a building where the children under 6 are housed, 183 were sleeping in six rooms under the care of nine ayahs and Mrs. Dolma.

CARE provided the material for beds made by a Tibetan carpenter.

Other organizations are helping. The British Commonwealth Save-The-Children Fund is paying for a washroom now under construction. The World YMCA, through such agencies as CARE, YMCA, is planning to build a play room.

Can't Look Away

Valerie was asked what the children need.

Without hesitating, she rattled off these items in one breath: blankets, warm clothing, shoes, medicine, vitamins, canned and bulk food, soaps, hot water bottles, towels, stoves, cooking pots, utensils, garden tools, games and toys, teaching equipment such as pencils, paper, blackboards, and

Kilpatrick, of the WCC, suggested that contributions be made through such agencies as CARE, Church World Service and Catholic relief services.

You Have to Pay, Even Eating the Note

TURIN, Italy (AP)—Elisabetta Guglielmetti, 31, was convicted even though she had eaten the evidence.

Police said the woman went to a bank here apparently to pay off a $2,300 promissory note. But when the bank cashier handed her the note she hastily stuffed it into her mouth, chewed it up and gulped it down.

Police said she admitted she had forged her father's signature on the note and had been unable to pay it off. The court gave her eight months in jail for fraud.

Just One Wife on That Exemption, Sire

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP)—The government has turned down a suggestion to grant income tax exemptions for all four wives of every Moslem.

These Yam Recipes from Louisiana Where Golden Vegetable is an Important Crop

BY LILLIAN MACKESY
Post-Crescent Food Editor

Many homemakers wonder about the difference between the familiar sweet potato and yams . . . in Louisiana there's no confusion . . . for this is the state in which the ordinary, standard sweet potato was developed into today's superior yam to become one of Louisiana's biggest harvest industries.

After years of research and experimentation started in the early 1930s at Louisiana State University, these special sweet 'taters rank with rice, cotton, corn, soy beans and sugar cane as an important crop. Louisianians celebrate the fresh yam season with special suppers from January through March when the yams are at their golden best. Harvested in October, these potatoes are stored in kilns where a curing process makes them especially flavorful for winter consumption.

They are available fresh through March with canned and frozen yams at hand the year-round.

In the friendly city of Opelousas . . . located in St. Landry Parish near Acadian French country of Evangeline fame . . . yam dishes are one of the many food specialties served throughout the year. Besides being the childhood home of famed Jim Bowie and briefly the state capital during the Civil War, Opelousas today is the center of America's Yam-land. It is in this lovely little city that blends with grace old Louisiana with modern times that the annual October Jambilee honors one of the area's major crops.

So from the land of the magnolia, magnificent live oaks and impressive bayous, we present this collection of delicious yam recipes.

Yam-Ham Pie

10 ounces frozen peas
1 pound ground cooked ham
1 egg, beaten
1/2 cup fine dry bread crumbs
4 medium-sized yams
1/2 cup butter or margarine, melted
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1/2 teaspoon celery salt

Cook, peel and quarter the yams lengthwise. Cook peas as directed on the package. Drain if necessary.

Combine ground ham, eggs and crumbs. Mix well. Press on bottom and sides of 10-inch pie plate. Arrange peas in center of ham pie shell. Arrange yams around peas.

Combine butter or margarine, lemon juice, grated lemon rind and celery salt. Brush peas and yams with this mixture. Bake in 350-degree oven for 35 minutes, brushing yams and peas with butter mixture frequently during baking period. Recipe makes four servings.

Yam Fritters

9 ounces crushed pineapple, drained
4 medium-sized yams, mashed
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup dry bread crumbs

After yams have been cooked, peeled and mashed, mix thoroughly with pineapple. Shape into eight round patties, about three inches in diameter. Melt butter in large skillet. Coat yam patties with bread crumbs and place in skillet. Cook over medium heat about five minutes on each side or until golden brown.

Ham-Stuffed Yams

4 medium yams
1/2 cup diced cooked ham
1 medium orange, chopped
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg

Bake yams in 350-degree oven until tender, about one hour. Cut yams in halves, lengthwise. Scoop out yams: reserve shells. Mash yams. Add diced ham, chopped orange, salt and nutmeg, mixing well. Fill yam shells with mixture. Bake 30 minutes in 350-degree oven. Garnish with parsley, if desired.

Yams with Okra

6 medium yams
10 ounces frozen whole baby okra
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup sour cream
1 tablespoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt

Perfect As a Supper Dish is this recipe for Ham-Stuffed Yams. The yams are baked first, then scooped out and the yams mashed. After the mashed yams are mixed with ground or diced cooked ham, chopped orange, a touch of salt and nutmeg, the mixture goes back into the potato shells to be baked again for a mel-low blending of flavors.

Louisiana Yams and ready-to-serve marshmallow creme make a delicious team for individual luncheon or supper casseroles. The addition of spices and chopped walnuts create an excellent party dish that's easy to make yet exceptionally appealing.

1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
4 medium yams, cooked, peeled and diced salt, pepper to taste
1 cup sour cream
4 slices toast

Melt butter or margarine. Add onion and mushrooms; cook over medium heat 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add turkey, yams, salt and pepper and sour cream. Heat to serving temperature, stirring frequently. Serve on toast. Recipe makes four servings.

Marshmallow Yams
6 medium yams, cooked, peeled and sliced

Angostura Chicken Really is a Caribbean dish as colorful as the tropics and as gay as calypso. Yet the ingredients are familiar . . . a two-pound fryer, olive oil, carrots, onions, tomatoes, yams and molasses with the addition of the blend of spices that is Angostura bitters. It's really worth trying.

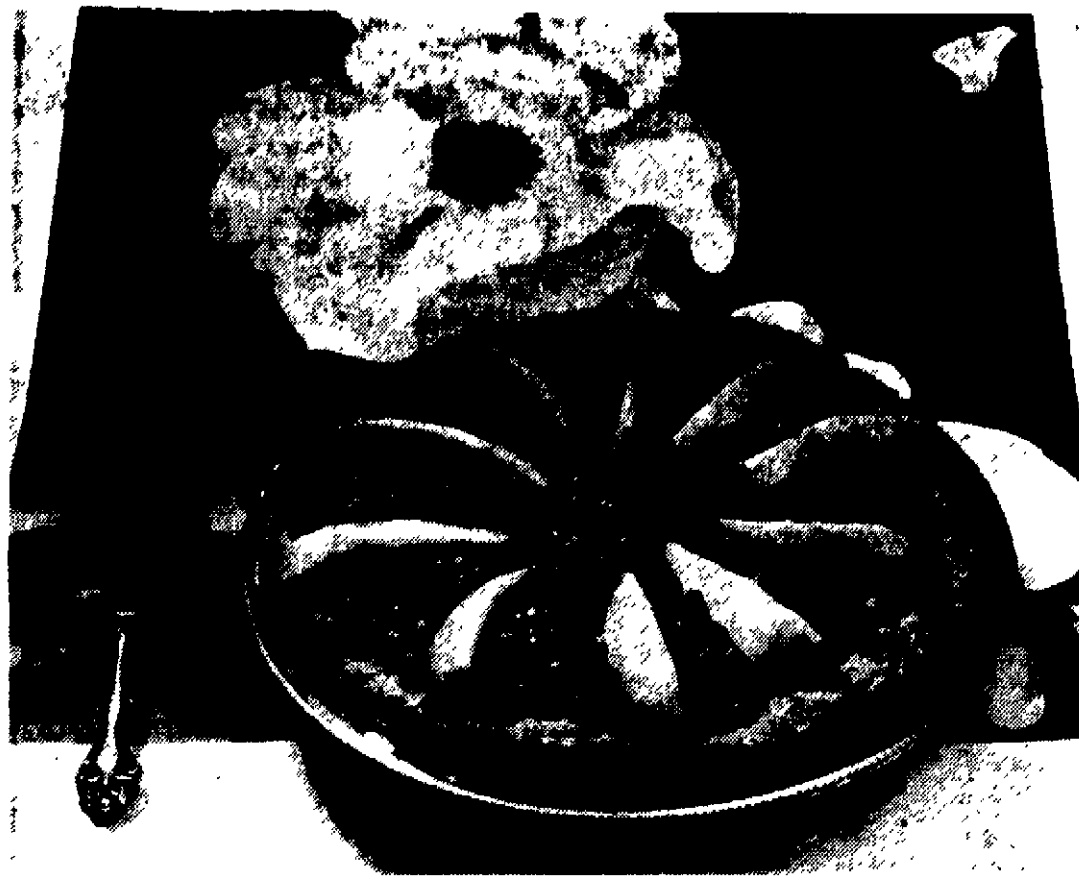

1/2 cup chopped walnuts
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon allspice
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 1/2 cups marshmallow creme

Combine yams, walnuts, cinnamon, allspice, salt and pepper, mixing well. Turn into six greased individual casseroles. Dot with butter. Top with marshmallow.

Alumnae Club Holds Party

Mrs. Edward Ogden was chairman of the hostess committee. The chapter will hold its founders' day banquet Feb. 19 at the Memorial Presbyterian Church, Appletan.

Displayed Against a Magnolia blossom, Louisiana's state flower, is a Yam-Ham Pie that combines the vegetable with peas in a crust made of ground ham, fine dry bread crumbs and a beaten egg. This is one of many recipes which feature the premium yam product of the southern state.

Golden Yams and Bright green okra make a colorful combination in this dish that's topped with a sour cream sauce. Served with chicken fricassee and hot biscuits, the family will have an excellent supper, Southern style.

Tile Tips

Few do-it-yourself projects bring more satisfaction than the laying of a sparkling new vinyl floor over a dingy old floor. Kits that include all needed tools and in- structions simplify matters, and certainly vinyl floor laying has been done by vast home labor forces with great success. But dis- appointments are less likely for reasons of choosing the wrong pattern and color than for choos- ing the wrong type of vinyl and a faulty job of laying the floor is more often caused by a bad start than by misfitting tiles.

Some very new vinyls of the all-vinyl compound class can be laid on-grade or below grade but in general, solid vinyls must be used above grade. Thus if the new floor is in the basement make sure that the vinyl is the kind that not only creates but maintains a handsome effect. Ask the flooring dealer and he may recommend asbestos tile which can be used on any floor. Then, start the tile laying in the center of the floor as the sketch shows so every tile looks profes- sionally in place rather than slid- ing toward one wall or another. Measure the room both ways, find the center and lay tape to guide beginning rows.

The rewards for castity are not the approval of meddlesome old biddies who come to a wedding to view the bride's waistline. The evil who waits earns the everlasting confidence and respect of the man she marries. There can be no greater satisfaction to a man than to know that he is getting some- thing very special—and that his bride is all his—L. of Illinois

Dear For and Aginners: My position is unchanged. It's always lovely when the bride is as pure as the driven snow—but who can tell by look- ing whether or not she has drift- ed? Better the guests should as- sume the best—and not be noses.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this news- paper enclosing a stamped, self- addressed envelope. (Copyright, 1962)

Organization Plans Dance for School

BLACK CREEK—The ABCs of music will sponsor a mid-winter ball at Black Creek Grade School gym Feb. 10 with dancing from 8 p.m. to midnight.

Proceeds of the ball will be used for promotion of musical activities at the school.

Don't Rely On a Foe

Remember that the opponents are not obliged to help you. The cunning rascals will hurt you if they can.

East won the first trick with the king of spades and shifted to the three of diamonds in the hope of knocking out dummy's ace. This excellent idea worked like a charm.

South played a low diamond, West put up the king and dum- my's ace won. Declarer went af- ter the hearts, and East held off until the second round East got out with a club and waited for South to tackle the diamonds.

South hopefully led the jack of diamonds. If this forced out the queen, South could later reach 10 ♠ H A 10 8 D Q 7 8 C dummy by leading a diamond to 10 6 2. What do you say? the ten.

Naturally, East refused to win the trick. He could see South's naive little plot and saw no rea- son to help him.

Now the dummy was dead and South lost three spades, a heart and a diamond.

Of course you've seen where South went astray. When East re- turned the three of diamonds at the second trick, it was up to South to play the jack!

Could be Done

West would cover with the king, and dummy would win with the ace. South would set up dummy's hearts and could then lead one of his two low diamonds. Either the ten or the nine of diamonds would furnish an entry to the rest of dummy's hearts.

Alumnae Aid In Collection Of Eyeglasses

The Appleton and Neenah Police Stations have been named by the Delta Gamma Alumnae Chapter as collection centers for old eyeglasses and sunglasses.

The annual collection of eyeglasses is part of the chapter's participation in the national project of aid to the blind. The discarded glasses are sent to New Eyes for the Needy, Inc., a non-profit, volunteer organization that provides funds for the purchase of new prescription glasses and artificial eyes for hospitals and agencies in 23 states, the District of Columbia, Haiti and Puerto Rico.

The eyeglasses will be packed and mailed at the Feb. 19 meeting. Mrs. Dexter Wolfe, 410 E. Pershing St., is chairman of the project.

Wearable Fashions Set Pace

BY GABRIELLE SMITH

PARIS (AP) — Guy Laroche rang in this third day of spring and summer Paris fashion openings with an eminently wearable collection that had its luscious moments as well.

Completely wearable were the tweed suits with small jackets, easy skirts that rose a bit above the waist in front and cowl-necked silk blouses.

Lusciousness came in with crepe dresses in sherbet colors you could eat, shimmering many-colored necklaces and bell-bottomed shantung trousers, to wear at home of course.

The suits tend to be straight-backed and very light looking. Some have "V" necks filled in with triangular masses of beads, or splashes of color in a bias collar that falls in a fold to look like a scarf. Coats are smooth, simple and almost straight. One navy blue model repeated the cowl-necked effect in its lapels.

Color harmonies were one of Laroche's highlights. An orange transparent organza coat over a baby pink dress, the whole topped with a pink and apricot straw hat, looked like something you could order at the soda fountain.

Little Labor But Lots of Flavor

BY MARY BETH KUESTER
Home Economist
Wisconsin Michigan Power Co.

You can make a meal in a jiffy without sacrificing flavor and attractiveness. Skillet meals allow you to put all ingredients into your skillet, cover, select the heat, and walk away.

Use an electric frypan if you have one, but if your range is equipped with an automatic surface unit, any skillet becomes an electric frypan. You needn't spend long hours and lots of money to enjoy gourmet delights. Try this budget and time saver for a start.

Jiffy Hamburger Stroganoff

1 pound chuck beef, ground
1/2 cup onion, coarsely grated
1 small garlic clove, minced
1 4-ounce can sliced mushrooms, drained
1 10 1/2-ounce can condensed cream of mushroom soup
1/2 cup shredded cheddar cheese
1/2 cup chopped pimiento
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon black pepper
1 cup sour cream
1/2 teaspoon brown seasoning sauce
1 sprig parsley, minced (about 2 tablespoons)
3 cups cooked rice or noodles

Break meat into small chunks in large skillet. Add onion, garlic, mushrooms, soup, cheese, pimiento, flour, salt and pepper. Mix well and cover skillet. Cook on automatic surface unit on low boil for 25 minutes or in electric frypan set at simmer. Stir in cream and seasoning sauce thoroughly, scraping brown portion of meat on bottom of skillet. Sprinkle with parsley. Serve meat mixture over rice. Recipe makes six servings.

Another quickie using canned crabmeat is just as simple. All ingredients are added at the same time. It's attractive and delicious too.

Jiffy Crabmeat Eleanor
1/4 cup butter
1 4-ounce can mushroom stems and pieces
1 small green pepper cut in 1/4-inch strips
1/4 cup toasted slivered almonds
1 teaspoon lemon rind
1 teaspoon lemon juice
2 10-ounce cans condensed cream of celery soup
1/2 teaspoon celery salt
1/4 cup chopped pimiento
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
Dash Tabasco sauce
1/4 teaspoon salt
Dash of black pepper
2 6 1/2-ounce cans flaked crabmeat
3 cups cooked rice

Melt butter in large skillet on automatic surface unit on low boil or simmer in electric frypan. Add mushrooms, green pepper, almonds, lemon rind, lemon juice, soup, celery salt, pimiento, parsley, Tabasco sauce, salt, pepper, and crabmeat. Stir thoroughly, cover. Cook for 25 to 30 minutes. Serve crabmeat mixture over rice. Recipe makes six to eight servings.

Substitute canned shrimp for crabmeat, and you add another specialty to your recipe file. Skillet meals are good company main dishes too. You can relax and concentrate on being a hostess.

Small family? Freeze half. Then time. It's attractive and delicious too.

Latin American Dancers Celebrate Mexican Winter

"Winter in Mexico" was the theme of the Latin American Dance Club party Saturday evening at Holiday Inn. Decorations carried out the theme of the Mexican climate and customs, and the breaking of a pinata was part of the program. A cocktail party preceded the dance.

Chairmen of the party were Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Miller, Mr. and Mrs. John Stevens and Mr. and Mrs. Don Frederickson.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stevens, co-chairmen of the Latin American Dance Club party at the Holiday Inn Saturday, picked up name tags from Mrs. Donald Frederickson, also a committee member. The tags were in the form of Mexican sombreros. At right, Lawrence Konz watches his blindfolded wife have a go at breaking the traditional pinata. According to the Spanish custom, the one who breaks the container releases treats for those present.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Miller sat out a rhumba against the background of a somnolent Mexican boy at siesta time. The Millers were co-chairmen of the Latin American Dance Club party.

Spareribs Come to the table crispy brown with a delicious sauce baked over and right into them. The sauce is zesty canned applesauce that has been blended with a little corn syrup and ground cloves, then a dash of paprika.

For Hungry Folks

Spareribs Baked With Applesauce

Pork and applesauce are buddies of long standing. Never is that more apparent than in this succulent spareribs dish.

In the baking the tang of apple blends with the very flavor of the one-half inch down between tops meat itself. This is a really great dish to serve on a cold day or as an entree for a guest meal.

It's a meat dish that is so satisfying that the rest of the meal can be kept slim—a green salad, crusty rolls and a fruit dessert with the beverage.

The nice thing about it all is that these spareribs are easy to prepare. The recipe has a simple sauce, simple cooking and takes a minimum of time. Here are the directions:

Apple 'N Spice Spareribs
4 pounds spareribs
1½ teaspoons salt

2 cups canned applesauce
¼ cup light corn syrup
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
¼ teaspoon paprika

Using kitchen shears, snip meat, Put spareribs, underside up, on rack in broiling pan or in large baking pan. Sprinkle with half of the salt. Broil 15 minutes on each side. Remove from broiler. Liberace Shows Off Mansion

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Liberace tossed a party Tuesday night to show off his $275,000 Hollywood Hills home, a symphony in gold that he will live in just five weeks a year.

The mansion, off Queen's Road above the Sunset Strip, is so big that even the rooms have rooms. Liberace said so far he has counted 29 rooms in the 32-year-old house, whose former owners included Ann Harding and Rudy Vallee.

The pianist traded a $100,000 apartment house for it.

"When I moved in," Liberace said, "the decor was early Gloria Swanson so I spent $175,000 redecorating."

The result is a miniature Versailles, done in French provincial style.

Seldom At Home

"I saved some money by building the living room valances myself," he said. He also built a French provincial china closet.

"I'm away on concert tours 47 weeks a year, so I don't have time to build anything else myself," he said.

The house has five pianos but, unlike his Sherman Oaks house, the swimming pool is a normal rectangle.

"No more piano-shaped pools," said Liberace. "Every time I felt like a swim, the pool was out of tune."

There is a hi-fi set built into an antique harpsichord, reminiscent of the old Liberace. Theme of the decor is elegance. The color scheme is gold—gold on white, gold on black and gold on gold.

Our Children

Individuality Very Important to Twins

BY ANGELO PATRI

Twins are always interesting. They thrill the parents even when they present difficulties of many sorts. To most of these the parents soon adjust themselves and enjoy the development of the two children so alike and so unlike.

Because they look alike on the outside many people overlook their innate differences. That is likely to cause one or both children a deal of discomfort if not unhappiness. To begin with the mother dresses them both alike. That may serve for a time but there is likely to come a day when one refuses the blue sweater and reaches for a red one. Give that one his preference, remembering that he is an individual in his own right and his differences, being precious to him, should be honored.

This difference, the child's individuality, runs through his being. One may be bright, quick and outgoing while the other may be quite the opposite. When this happens the school must allow each to have the education best suited to him and make no reflection on either. Usually the school does just that and the mother resents it, wanting both children in the same class. Wisdom indicates separation.

Go Separate Ways

As soon as the children indicate different degrees of intelligence, in certain fields of learning, guide each to his strength. Don't try to force the one who seems to fail in arithmetic to work harder at it to "keep up with his twin." There is nothing in twinning that demands the submersion of a personality to meet an artificial standard.

What we want to do is develop the best gifts, qualities of character, the richest personality each child possesses although one may be very different from the other. To do otherwise, to try to force one child to the likeness of the other is to create antagonism, perhaps set up mental barriers to handicap a child in days to come. Each child has the right to his own being, meaning the right to develop the gifts he has, without being made to feel bound to another and different being, without being forced to try to live in another's skin.

Twins are delightful additions to the family and they can become happy, well-adjusted human beings if they are treated as individuals, not as an inseparable twosome.

Today's Etiquette

TEAS REQUIRE HATS

During the Christmas holidays I attended an afternoon reception and tea for a debutante. I noticed that a handful of women were without hats. Is this the beginning of a new trend? I don't like to wear hats and wonder if I could get away with it if I don't wear any at future teas.

Louise Davis Answers:

Hats are a must at debutante teas or at any kind of afternoon

tea. Oftentimes casualness goes been rejected. What should be too far, even in 1962. I suggest that you make the most of yourself by doling up in your afternoon best, but without overdressing into the formal cocktail type outfit. A tea or reception such as you described calls for dignity in dress and behaviour without being formal or stuffy. If you see hatless women at these parties, they may be assistant hostesses, other of the season's debutantes or a few non-conformists who purposely defy convention.

Louise Davis Answers: The gifts should be returned with accompanying explanation as well as an expression of appreciation for the thoughtfulness in giving. You son couldn't keep the gifts and come through with a clear conscience.

REJECTED I gave a farewell party for my son who was getting ready to serve his country. Friends and relatives brought many gifts including money. My son didn't pass his physical test, so has

Odd Pre-Flight Tests

BY ALTON BLAKESLEE

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)

—On medical advice, astronaut John Herschell Glenn Jr. has been walking barefooted over wooden rails — and had warm water squirted into his ears.

These odd preparations for his coming space voyage are tests of his sense of balance, and resistance to motion sickness.

They are just part of an intensive new medical study of one great unknown about human space flight. That is whether human's can withstand prolonged periods of being weightless, free of the earth's familiar pull of gravity.

Upset Tissues

Do men necessarily get sick without gravity? Do delicate body

Sofia Freer Than Several Red Capitals

However, Few People Live Well by Western Standards

BY MICHAEL GOLDSMITH

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP)—You can swing to rock 'n' roll in Sofia these days, but the twist hasn't caught on yet.

In the Astoria Bar, you can watch a Western style floor show and sip French champagne . . . if you can afford it.

You can buy — and sell — a house, an automobile or a washing machine.

You cannot own a factory or live on unearned income. And it is virtually impossible to travel abroad except in organized groups or on official business.

Minority Lives Well Only a privileged minority lives well by Western standards. This includes all the higher Red officials, of course, but also artists, writers and professional men who may be opponents of the regime and are sometimes not afraid to say so.

For the unprivileged masses, life is drab and hard. A worker's 46-hour working week leaves him little time and money to enjoy luxuries.

Surprisingly, it is possible to complain openly about the regime and yet own a car and other Western symbols of prosperity. However, if you can live well without supporting the regime, you live still better by toeing the line. Most prefer to toe the line.

In many ways, the atmosphere is more relaxed than in other Communist capitals. The Communist system's grip on the country apparently is so complete now that no signs of a Stalin-type police terror are visible.

Cheerful Faces

Laughter and cheerful faces fill the crowded sidewalks, street cars and restaurants. There are none of the ugly propaganda signboards that often disfigure the streets of other red-ruled cities. Police patrols never carry sub-machine guns, as in East Berlin. The housing shortage still leaves two or three persons crowded into a single room. Food stores are usually well stocked but sometimes run out of potatoes, rice or wheat flour.

The government blames the shortages on harvest failures, but much of Bulgaria's farm output is exported. Huge blue trailer trucks pull out of Sofia on the long haul to Central Europe crammed with local products Bulgarians cannot find in their shops.

More than 98 per cent of Bulgarian farmers are compulsorily grouped in farm cooperatives.

"Our people willingly make sacrifices to help the essential industrialization of our country," a Communist official explained enthusiastically.

Complaints heard from many sides indicate that the sacrifices are made without enthusiasm, but no trace of organized opposition is seen.

"The Communist system is as firmly entrenched here as anywhere," one experienced American diplomat said.

"The people are completely debauched by the state, but they try to make the best of it."

"There is less of that feeling of oppression you get in Moscow, Bucharest or Prague. I can walk down the street without being followed, and I can invite Bulgarian friends to my home."

Despite many frustrations, the American legation in Sofia plays an important role at this crossroads of the Soviet bloc. Diplomatic relations were resumed in 1960. Leading Communist officials say the American minister, Edward Pace, Jr., and his staff "maintain a very correct attitude." Except for a noisy stone-throwing demonstration following the ill-fated Cuban invasion, there has been no serious friction.

Phones Tapped

The legation phones are systematically tapped. An embassy news bulletin was stopped when all the Bulgarian recipients—clearly under orders—sent copies back marked "unwanted."

American life and personalities systems become upset? If so, humans may never reach the moon.

The Soviet Union's Gherman Titov surprisingly got rather seasick during 25 hours of weightlessness.

"That put us somewhat on guard about weightlessness," says Dr. Stanley C. White, director of medical support for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. "Now we want to learn much more about it."

When Glenn's capsule is in orbit, it literally will be falling around the earth. Earth's gravity will try to tug it back. But the spaceship's 17,500-mile per hour speed will balance that force.

No Weight

Glenn, weighing 165 pounds on earth, will feel he has no weight. Without restraining straps, he would float in the cabin.

The 40-year-old Marine officer is scheduled to experience weightlessness for 4½ hours. Astronauts Alan B. Shepard and Virgil I. Grissom were weightless only five minutes each, and had no trouble. Neither did Yuri Gagarin during 90 minutes of flight around the earth.

But Titov said he got upset, kind of seasick. Holding his head still helped, he says.

If long weightlessness affects all men like that, trips to the moon are out unless antidotes or protections can be found.

One man's experience doesn't prove anything. But special experiments on weightlessness were designed for Glenn, explains Dr. William Douglas, personal physician to the astronauts.

Walking on the wooden rails of different widths, with eyes open and eyes closed, was one balance test used by Dr. Ashton Graybiel, a famous medical consultant to NASA. Glenn did well, as he has done in other types of tests.

The inner ear contains tiny bones regulating sense of balance. Squirted cold water into the ear makes everyone dizzy.

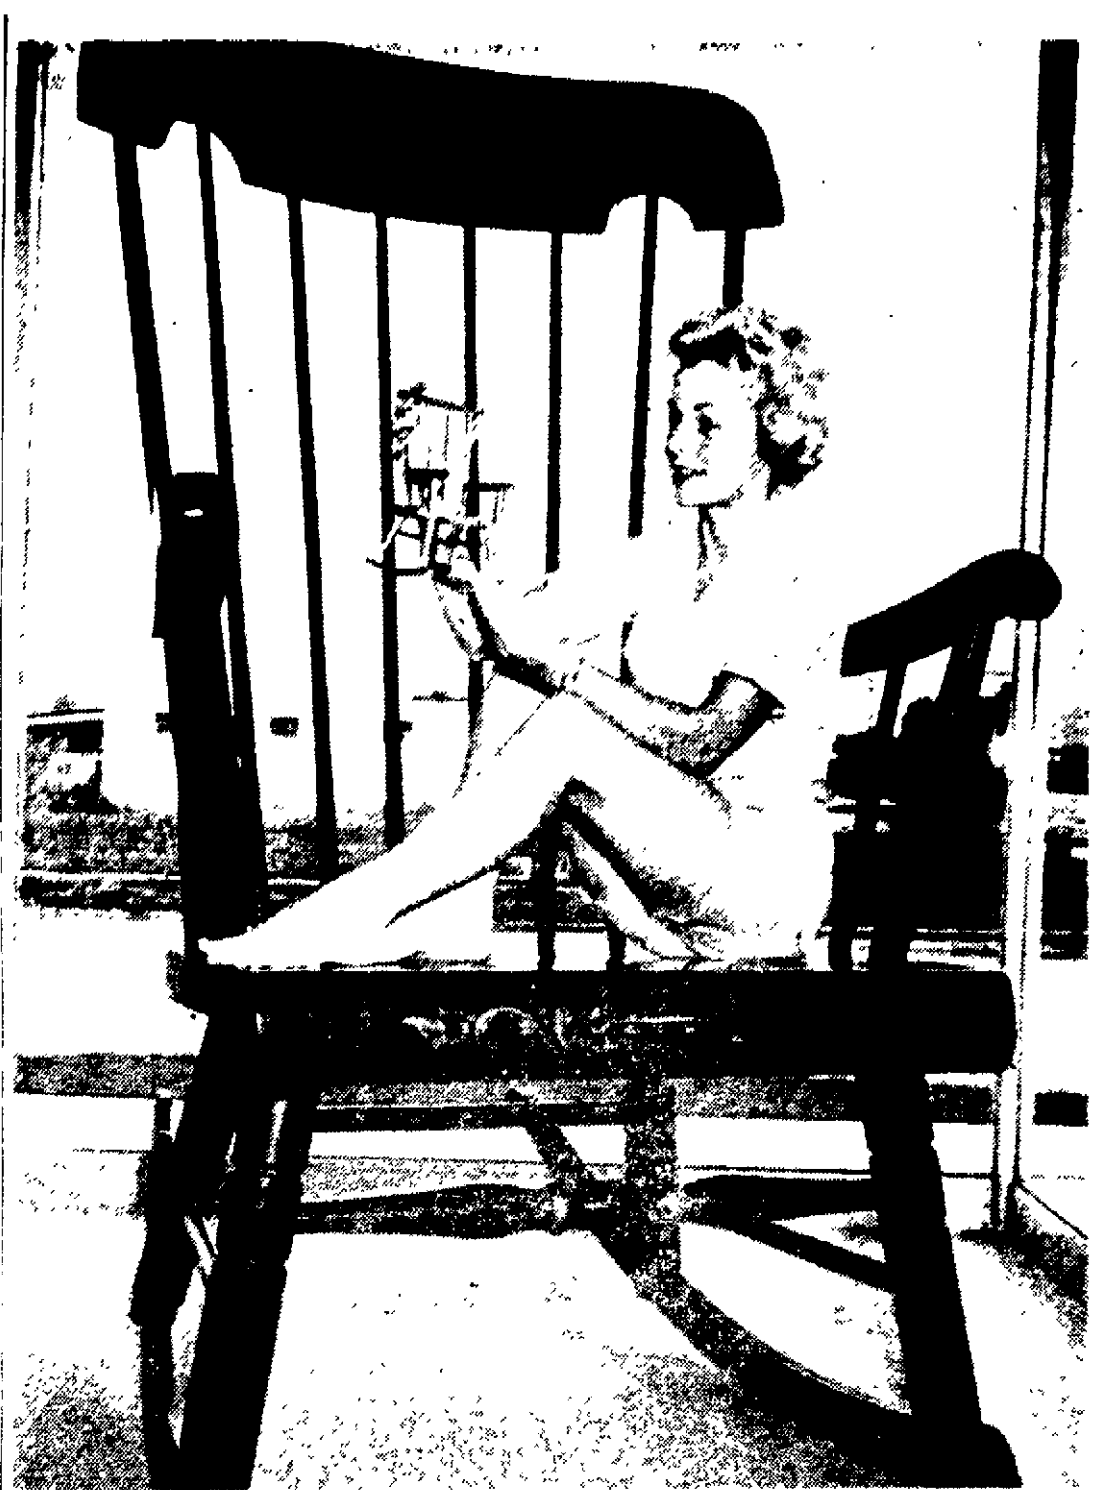

Water just below body temperature can make eyes flucker. The cooler the water a man can take, the more it indicates resistance to motion sickness. Again, Glenn has done well, Douglas said.

The same tests will be repeated soon after his space ride, to detect any effects from long weightlessness.

are pictured in a photo display outside the legation. "They stood in line to see the first pictures of President and Mrs. Kennedy after the election," said embassy counselor Sidney H. Fine.

A rival display in a photo store is intended to show that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is directed by revenge-seeking Nazis and other warmongers. Pictures of American soldiers guarding West Berlin are placed side-by-side with pictures of a Nazi general bowing before Hitler or of alleged French massacres in North Africa.

Pedestrians assemble freely before both displays, ignoring the Red militiaman on duty outside the legation.

Something Is Out of Proportion in this photo and it's not Miss Fonda Ash, who is 5 ft. 2 and from Clearwater, Fla. The rocker in which she is sitting is 7 feet tall and 4 feet wide and weighs 380 pounds.

Plan Careful Attack to Overcome Fears Cropping Up During Exams

BY LESLIE J. NASON, Ed. D., Professor of Education, University of Southern California

Do you "choke up" on tests and wonder why? Perhaps your mind is filled with fears. Fear of failure, fear of letting parents down; fear of losing face among your classmates.

If fear has a hold on your mind it may have your thinking apparatus tied up to the point where you will do just what you fear most—fail.

You can't get rid of fears by just saying "Go away!" The only way to solve the problem is to crowd out the fears with thoughts of your own choosing. After all, it's still your mind and you can control it!

You must think in terms of a job that you need to do and make up your mind exactly how you are going to do it. First of all, you must know your materials. A Showcase for Ideas of the future goes up in Seattle, Wash., as work is rushed on buildings for the World's Fair. With "Century 21" as its theme, the fair will present architecture, science and other phases of future life as predicted by present designers. In the foreground is the Space Needle with its revolving restaurant. Behind it, just below restaurant in photo, is the coliseum with its unique roof, one of the fair's engineering feats. In the center front is an armory left standing on the site.

Structural Fantasia Century 21 Gets Preview at Sparkling Seattle World Fair

BY STEVE LOWELL
SEATTLE (AP) — A structural fantasia is taking shape in this far northwest corner of the nation. It's a mark of the skill of the craftsman of today and a promise of the good things man can produce in the future. The people of this gateway city to the north Pacific stand by fascinated, watching the Seattle world's fair materialize in imaginative patterns of stone and steel. Next April hundreds of thousands of strangers will join them to ride to this land of things to come in a train of the future, see what the people of other lands hope to be doing in industry, agriculture, art and many other fields in the next century—only 38 years away—wander through the halls of the science pavilion, wander through an imaginary world of Century 21 and eat in a restaurant slowly revolving 600 feet above the city streets. Symbolic Buildings Some of the foreign exhibits will be housed in two buildings with roofs shaped like clusters of morning glories turned toward the sky. On the other side of the grounds, beyond a fountain like none other, is the United States Science Pavilion, a group of six glistening buildings around a court where five Gothic arches tower 100 feet high. They are meant to express the theme of the pavilion and its exhibits—man's constant reaching for better things. This group belongs to the federal government, like a national monument or park. Congress picked up the $9-million construction tab. The king-sized construction jobs on the fairgrounds and nearby were the monorail, built to carry visitors from the center of town to the fair; the coliseum, which shelters the theme exhibit, and the impressive space needle, with its revolving restaurant high above the city. The monorail system is being built by Alwac International of Sweden for $4.2 million. The company believes the cost is worthwhile because of the advertising value. People from all over the world will have a chance to see it. You'll pay a roundtrip fare of $1.00. The $3-million coliseum, which will house the theme exhibit, has a roof which is the first of its kind. There is a graceful framework of concrete and steel soaring to a central peak 11 stories high. The low outer walls are glass from the edge beams to the floor. The design leaves the interior clear of any obstructions—it's 350 feet across each way—big enough for two football fields. This giant fieldhouse is to become the property of Seattle after the fair. The piece de resistance of the fairgrounds is the spectacular space needle. Sweeping up toward the sky, three pairs of steel legs converge about two-thirds of the way up and then flare out again as they keep on rising, so the tower is shaped like a sheaf of grain. Talliest Spire On the top is an object which looks like the spinning tops kids used to spin. From the 40-foot base tapers atop that it's a drop of about 60 feet to the ground, making this $3.5-million spire the tallest structure west of the Mississippi River. Inside the red-and-gold top is a glass-enclosed observation plat-

Leaders Join In Hungarian Red Regime Ridiculed in TV Revue

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Hungary's Communist regime is letting its shortcomings be lampooned sharply in public and joining in the laughs. The main topic of conversation among Budapesters was a 4½-hour television revue, seen by an estimated two million people, which relentlessly gaped some of the major failings of Hungarian life. The revue was televised live from a Budapest theater. And the cameras frequently turned on government leaders in the front row who were obviously enjoying every barbed shaft. Soft Breeze? Some Western observers considered it possible that a new soft breeze is blowing in Hungary in the wake of the anti-Stalinism launched at the recent Soviet party congress in Moscow. In a swipe at shoddy building methods, a plumber in one sketch said: "I read recently that the regime intends to build one million new apartments. Which means that I for one will never be out of repair work." Debunking the Communist theory that it will eradicate middle class thinking, the plumber quips: "When I call on a bourgeois housewife I say good morning and never forget to add 'madame.' She likes it. Even More "When I call on a proletarian housewife, I also say 'good morning, madame.' She likes it even more." Another sketch showed a radio reporter interviewing a worker on a collective farm: Reporter—What's your daily program? Peasant—I read the papers and magazines, read old and new books, listen to the radio, watch the TV and play gramophone records. Reporter—Where does work figure in your daily schedule? Peasant—Work? What's that? They tell us it's all done with machinery now. Reporter—But what about the small private plot of land you're permitted to own on this collective? Peasant—That's different. My family is out there now working on it itself to death. In a third sketch a professor regime's radio jamming apparatus. The latest issue of the usually staid journal Life and Literature took a similar satirical approach. Regarded by many Hungarians as reflecting neither life nor literature, the journal is often referred to simply as "and." The editors this week reproduced "and" in the title block in big bold letters. To drive home the point, a black circle was drawn around the word. In an editorial—printed upside down—the journal acidly commented on the regime's constant exhortations that writers should go to factories and then write about "socialist man." "Let our writers go out into life," the journal said. "Kneedeep in its wilderness they should be able to report reliably on what they see there. We, too, should like to know."

Original Dead End Kid In 'Boys' Night Out'

Marking his first motion picture appearance in three years, Billy Halop, one of the original "Dead End Kids," has a feature role in "Boys' Night Out." Kim Novak, James Garner and Tony Randall co-star in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer movie. Halop will portray a wisecracking elevator boy in the picture.

Terror Quint Opens Second-Round Play

Southern Association Forced to Suspend Operations for 1962

Chattanooga and Nashville Slated To Join SAL

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—The Class AA Southern Association, at 61 years one of the nation's oldest minor baseball leagues, has been forced to suspend operations, with two of its four remaining members finding refuge in the lower Class A South Atlantic League.

Nashville and Chattanooga, Tenn., leave the folded Southern Association to make the South Atlantic a 10-team league for this season only. Evansville, Ind., and Little Rock, Ark., are left without a league.

However, there's an "if." Nashville has been given until Feb. 5 to obtain a general Class A working agreement with a major league team.

Should the deadline not be met, Joe Engel, veteran Chattanooga general manager, said his club would not operate this year, either.

The South Atlantic then would be right back with eight teams.

Trautman Grim

A grim, somber George M. Trautman, head of the minor leagues, presided over the two-hour closed meeting that sounded the death knell of the charter member of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.

It reduced to 19 the number of active minor leagues, three under last year's total and a far cry from the 440 teams that operated in 56 minor circuits in 1949.

Trautman announced "with great reluctance the suspension of the Southern Association, effective Feb. 15, due to inability to secure working agreements beyond four already committed."

Chattanooga, Nashville, Evansville and Little Rock had major league affiliations and were ready to field teams in 1962. But no more working agreements could be obtained. And the South Atlantic took a dim view of a proposal that the 12 teams be divided into two six-team leagues.

Nashville had a Detroit tieup in effect for the Southern Association, but South Atlantic member Knoxville, Tenn., also is working with Detroit. Two such arrangements are not permitted in a league.

The association's troubles started after the 1961 season when Atlanta and Macon, Ga.; Mobile and Birmingham, Ala.; and Shreveport La., withdrew. Evansville replaced Atlanta and Hal Totten, association president, hoped to pick up two more cities to form a six-member combine.

He tried in vain to sell the Sally leaguers on the idea of locating franchises in Columbus and Macon, Ga., and splitting the dozen teams into six-club leagues.

South Atlantic officials also shied away from the increased travel and expense taking in Evansville and Little Rock would have meant. The Sally also includes Charlotte and Asheville.

Kolstad Named Head Coach of Knight Trackmen

WEST DE PERE (AP)—St. Norbert football coach Howie Kolstad has been named to take over as head coach of the Green Knights track team.

The announcement was made Wednesday by Athletic Director Mel Nicks. He said Kolstad, who came to St. Norbert in 1960, replaces Romie Kosnar, who will remain as head basketball coach and track assistant.

"The change is being made to allow us time for greater preparations for track," said Nicks. "Kosnar's basketball coaching duties interfere with the early part of the track season."

Bradley's Walker Has Kidney Ailment

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—Methodist Hospital said Wednesday Chet Walker, All-America basketball player from Bradley University, has a kidney disorder.

He is resting comfortably, but there was no indication of when he will leave the hospital and return to the Bradley team.

Physicians said Walker will remain under observation and undergo a series of examinations. They said he would not be able to play Saturday when Bradley meets North Texas State in a Missouri Valley Conference basketball game. There also is a possibility that Walker will not play Monday against Tulsa, they said.

Friday's Games:
Appleton at Fond du Lac, North at West.
Oshkosh at Manitowoc, East at South.

BY RALPH MUELLER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

The Appleton Terrors will meet a basketball team almost as unpredictable as themselves Friday night when they travel to Fond du Lac to battle the Cardinals. It will mark the start of the second round for Fox River Valley Conference teams.

AHS will be looking for revenge as the Cardinals handed them a 61-59 loss in the opening game of the conference season in December.

The Cardinals went on to become the Cinderella team of the circuit. Picked to finish in the cellar by the Fox Valley sports writers, Fondy romped to three straight wins before dropping its next three. The Cardinals finally broke the loss skein last week and surprised Oshkosh, 49-45.

In other games, Sheboygan North will be at Green Bay West. Oshkosh travels to Manitowoc and Green Bay East tangles with Sheboygan South.

It's anyone's guess as to just what kind of a game Appleton will play Friday. The Terrors rebounded from that Fond du Lac loss to post successive victories over Sheboygan North and Green Bay East. Then came four straight league losses, the last of which was at the hands of Manitowoc, 51-50, last week.

Good Tussles

The Terrors gave the conference leader, Sheboygan South, and Manitowoc good tussles but were completely out of the running against Oshkosh and Green Bay West.

The Fond du Lac attack will be led by the conference scoring ace, Tony Meade. Meade has tallied 149 points in the first seven games for an average of 21.3.

Chuck Bloedorn is next in line for Fondy. Bloedorn has scored 95 points, good enough for ninth place in the league.

Other Fond du Lac starters will be chosen from Steve McConahey.

Red Wings Stop New York, 3-0; Black Hawks Win

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
With Gordie Howe popping them in and Terry Sawchuk kicking them out, the Detroit Red Wings won their eighth straight game against the New York Rangers 3-0 Saturday night. The Red Wings blanked the Rangers, who were looking for a good bet to qualify for the National Hockey League playoffs.

Howe and Sawchuk performed their specialties Wednesday night and the Red Wings blanked the skidding New York Rangers 3-0 and took over undisputed possession of fourth place—the last playoff spot. The Rangers went down to their eighth straight setback and fell into fifth, two points behind Detroit.

In the only other game played, the Chicago Black Hawks solidified their hold on third place with a 2-1 verdict over the runnerup Toronto Maple Leafs.

Howe, a five-time league scoring champion, collected two goals. Sawchuk handled 28 shots flawlessly as he turned in his fifth shutout of the season.

Salary Talks Suspended

Maris and Yankees Still $10,000 Apart

NEW YORK (AP)—Home run king Roger Maris and New York Yankees officials, still a reported $10,000 apart on Maris' 1962 contract, will wait until the club heads to Florida for further negotiations.

"No agreement was reached," General Manager Roy Harney of the Yankees said after a 20-minute meeting with Maris Wednesday. "Further contract negotiations will be resumed in Florida next month."

Both Harney and Maris will attend the New York Baseball Writers' dinner Sunday night but apparently any talks will be social only.

Maris reportedly is asking $70,000 after his sensational 1961 season, when he rapped 61 home runs in a 162-game schedule and won the American League's Most Valuable Player Award for the second straight time.

Best guess is that the outfielder drew $35,000 last season. Harney, against a 100 per cent increase, is believed to be trying to hold or Jim McKnight.

One of the Starters for the Fox Valley Lutheran High School basketball team here Friday night against Lakeside Lutheran of Fort Atkinson will be Bruce Landverk. FVL is the current leader of the Badger Lutheran Conference and is undefeated in league play.

Tom Hughbanks Looms as Replacement for Jackson

Erickson Lauds UW's Play, Plans for Purdue Game

MADISON (AP)—Wisconsin was a ragging showing despite all the scoring," the coach said.

"This time," he went on, "it was a matter of our good play pushing the score up. Our running was wonderful, why, even I was impressed. You know, I watch the players every day and I know when they're running loose."

Score Ninth Win

"They really let themselves go. A number of times the man who grabbed the rebound hustled on the fast break and made the lay-up. I haven't seen running like that in my time here."

The Badgers shot at a sizzling 48.9 average while winning their ninth of 12 games.

With North Dakota disposed of, the Badgers were left face to face with two problems—Purdue on Saturday and the loss of high-scoring Ron Jackson right after that.

Erickson indicated he was giving all of his attention to the Boilermaker game. The Badgers are undefeated in two Big Ten games while Purdue is 3-2.

With Jackson, who will be sidelined for the second semester because of low grades, still in action on Saturday the ambitious Badgers have a chance of grabbing their third straight conference victory.

Asked about plans for replacing Jackson, Erickson said, "I won't even start thinking about Monday's game at Illinois until after Purdue."

Tom Hughbanks, the team's leading scorer in the two previous seasons, seemed to have the inside track. Erickson aides John Orr and Ron Nord agreed Hughbanks, the only senior on the squad, never looked better than Tuesday night.

"He may not be the fastest and player around, but his experience enables him to use his speed when he needs it," Erickson said when asked his feelings about Hughbanks' play against North Dakota, Tor.

Celtics Lose As Russell Misses Game

Bob Cousy said it a year ago. "We can win without me. We can win without (Tommy) Heinsohn. We can win without (now departed) Bill Sharman. But without Big Bill we don't win," the Boston Celtics captain said.

And Boston, sorely missing the services of big Bill Russell, lost one of its rare National Basketball Association games Wednesday night, falling before struggling St. Louis 135-123.

Russell, Boston's ace rebounder and generally acknowledged as the best defensive player in basketball, was sidelined with a pulled Achilles tendon, suffered in New York Tuesday.

The lanky center, voted the NBA's most valuable player last season, will be out a week.

The loss was only the 10th this season for the Celtics, who are racing toward their sixth straight Eastern Division title, and only their second at home this season.

The victory lifted St. Louis to within 2½ games of Detroit which holds third place—the last playoff spot—in the West. Detroit took a 111-102 victory over Syracuse on the Pistons' home court Wednesday night. Wilt Chamberlain led Philadelphia to a 122-108 conquest of weary Chicago in a Boston Garden game that preceded the Celtics-St. Louis clash.

Baylor Scores 38

At Los Angeles, the Lakers beat Cincinnati 136-123 with Army private Elgin Baylor scoring 38 points and Jerry West getting 50. Veteran Larry Foust and substitute Shelley McMillon led a third period St. Louis rally that wiped out a 66-57 Boston halftime lead and gave the Hawks a 95-84 lead late in the quarter. Boston simply couldn't make up the difference.

Bob Pettit of St. Louis and Boston's Heinsohn each had 28 points.

Chamberlain slipped in 55 points in a personal duel with Chicago rookie Walt Bellamy, who had 47. It was the seventh game in as many nights for the Packers, who have played in six cities in the stretch. They have yet to beat Philadelphia in seven tries.

Baylor, on a one-day leave from Fort Lewis, Wash., was rested frequently by Laker coach Fred Schaus but played brilliantly in helping West boost Los Angeles to a 7½ game lead over Cincinnati.

AAU, NCAA Will Arbitrate but Chances Look Slim

Proposal to Settle Differences Made by Head of Olympic Group

BY WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—The AAU and NCAA say they're willing to sit down and try to resolve their differences, as proposed by the U.S. Olympic head, but chances looked slim today for a quick peace in the war for control of American amateur sports.

The Amateur Athletic Union, in the driver's seat, professes a willingness to arbitrate. The rebellious National Collegiate Athletic Association says, in effect, "We'll talk but—"

"We've been going through this for years," said Chick Werner of Penn State, president of the National Collegiate Track Coaches Association. "We won't let them throw us any bones. We'll not settle for anything less than a new federation. I'm afraid we have reached the point of no return."

The proposal of an arbitration conference was made here by Kenneth (Tug) Wilson of Chicago, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, Wednesday.

Development Program

After addressing an Olympic rally aimed at harnessing the country's youth in a gigantic development program, Wilson said he planned to call a meeting with the next month to try to settle the AAU-NCAA dispute.

"The differences between the two groups are not great," he said. "Both sides have men of understanding and vision. I am optimistic about settling all the issues and getting down to business with a single purpose."

A group of college coaches earlier this month in Chicago set in motion plans for rival federations in track and field, basketball and gymnastics. If they could gain international approval, these groups would supplant the AAU in the control of these sports, even for international and Olympic competition.

They are even planning conflicting championship meets for the purpose of selecting international teams. If permitted to continue, the giant squabble could split—and even wreck—America's sports teams.

Principally, the NCAA accuses the AAU of poor management and of denying the colleges and high schools a proper voice in the conduct of sports.

Louis Fisher of High Point, N.C., president of the AAU, said his group would welcome an arbitration meeting.

Specific Complaints

"We have told them all along that all we need to know are their specific complaints," he said. "We don't intend to give up the governing power we have had for years."

Walt Byers, executive director of the NCAA, made a terse statement before catching a plane from New York for his home in Kansas City.

"If the AAU is ready to sit down and really thrash out this matter with us, naturally we would agree to participate," he said. "We must be assured, however, of honest intentions to air all the issues."

Wilson, expressing distress at this friction between the two major governing bodies at a time when the country should be uniting in preparation for the 1964 Olympics, said both sides would have to give ground.

"The AAU may have to broaden its committees," he said. "The colleges may have to soften their demands."

Neenah Retains Third Position In Cage Ratings

Kimberly Drops Out of 'Big 16'; Brillion Slips

Neenah High School's basketball team retained the third spot in the state's Big 16 listing today. After suffering its first loss of the season (against Two Rivers) Friday, the Rockets bounced back to trounce Kimberly last Saturday. The defeat dropped Kimberly from the ninth position to the special mention list.

The only teams rated ahead of Neenah are unbeaten Milwaukee Lincoln and LaCrosse Central. Area teams on the special mention list, besides Kimberly, are Manitowoc and Two Rivers.

Brillion dropped from second to eighth in the "Little 16." Niagara has replaced Crivitz as the No. 1 small school.

Weyauwega and Winneconne are accorded special mention.

124 Entered in Ski Meet Sunday

MADISON (AP)—The list of entries for the 15th annual Central U. S. ski jumping championships to be held at nearby Tomahawk Ridge Sunday has reached 124, the Blackhawk Ski Club reported today.

The field includes a number of national champions, among them Clyde Brodt of Minneapolis and John Lyons of St. Paul. Expected to send in his entry is Larry Bergh of Eau Claire, who is a former Central meet champion. Seven other jumpers who placed in the top 20 last year have entered.

Jumpers will compete in four classes.

Another Zany First For Candlestick Park, Box Seat Too Cold

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Candlestick Park, home of the baseball Giants where a pitcher was blown off the mound during an All-Star game, was involved in another zany first Tuesday.

A jury of 10 women and two men took only 20 minutes to award attorney Melvin Belli $1,507, the season's price in 1960 for a box, because the box proved to be cold.

Belli, known for his handling of odd cases, had charred the Giants and owner Horace Stoneham with breach of warranty because an advertised radiant heating system for the box didn't work.

The jurors, although giving Belli's money back, couldn't agree if fraud was involved. The verdict involved only the baseball company. Municipal Judge Andrew J. Eymann dismissed all accusations against Stoneham.

Idzik Named Head Coach At Detroit

DETROIT (AP)—John Idzik faced a new job and a lot of new problems today.

He was appointed head coach and football director at the University of Detroit Wednesday replacing Jim Miller who went to Boston College.

"Right now, my first two problems are getting the staff together and recruiting," he said. "I haven't had time to think about the other fulltime assistant. I have a few in mind but I want to take a couple of days to think about it."

Idzik said "it looks good" as far as football scholarships are concerned.

The 33-year-old former Detroit Titan offensive coach received a one-year contract at an undisclosed salary. The school announced that Joe Clark and Bob Hicks, both assistants under Miller, will be offered new contracts.

Idzik played college football at Maryland and played with the Ottawa Rough Riders in the Canadian League and with the Patriots Island and Quantico Marines. He also worked as an assistant coach at Maryland and Tennessee.

Idzik said "it looks good" as far as football scholarships are concerned.

The Wolves have won eight straight games since losing their opening contest.

Reedsville is fresh from a 63-50 upset of Brillhorn, the No. 2 ranked school in the state's Little Sixteen.

Other games on Friday's Little Nine slate: Onondaga at Wrightstown, Bear Creek at Hilbert, Freedom at Shiloh and Hortonville at Denmark.

Victories are a must for the three of the runnerup teams. All have 6-3 records and trail the Wolves by two games with only four weeks to play.

Bear Creek will tangle with Hilbert in an effort to keep pace. The Bruins club apparently has recovered from a mid-season slump which saw them lose three straight games.

Four Rinks Tied In Mixed League

Ferkovitch, Wirth and Hart rinks are tied for second place, one game behind the leaders.

Schroeder was brought to the hospital at West Point with multiple fractures of the left leg, a badly cut arm and a broken nose and abrasions on his face.

He was riding alone, on his way to work from International Falls, 5 a.m. until he was shown to visit his home in Minnesota at about 9 p.m.

Pender-Downes Victor To Meet Gene Fullmer of the light-heavyweight crown he has won for nine years.

The disputed bantamweight title was settled last week when Eder Jofre of Brazil stopped Ireland's Johnny Caldwell. Each had claimed a share of the crown.

Announcement Wednesday of a Paul Pender-Terry Downes fight with the winner going against Gene Fullmer pointed toward probable settlement of the disputed middleweight title.

Still in question. Which leaves only the light-heavy crown still in question. Moore who admits to being 48 and may be five or six years older, is recognized as champion in New York, Massachusetts and Europe.

Harold Johnson of Philadelphia is recognized by the National Boxing Association.

"We're making every effort to arrange for a title fight," said Gen. Melvin Krulwich, chairman of the New York commission. He said he has recently conferred with Bill Yale of San Diego, Moore's attorney, in an effort to arrange for a title bout with either NBA champ Johnson or Doug Jones, the No. 2 challenger from New York.

Archie, shorn of the title because of inactivity, outpointed Italy's Giulio Rinaldi in New York last June 10. It was his first title defense in almost two years.

Downes won the Massachusetts New York-European version of the title by beating Pender in London July 11. They were signed for a return fight in Boston, April 7, but for a while it looked like it was going to fall through.

Wednesday, however, the British agreed to fulfill the contract. At the same time Downes and Pender, of Brookline, Mass., accepted a proposal by the New York commission that the winner take on Fullmer, of West Jordan, Utah, within 90 days and clear up the middleweight title. The site has not been determined.

Houston Park May be Largest

Temporary Stadium Pleases Richards, Opener April 10

HOUSTON (AP)—Final measurements of the playing area where the Houston Colts make their 1962 debut in the National League may be the largest in the major leagues.

Paul Richards, general manager, said today he is pleased with the measurements at the $800,000 temporary stadium where the Colts meet the Chicago Cubs on April 10.

National League hitters will be swinging toward a 360-foot barrier in left field, a 420-foot fence in center field, and a 360-foot target in right field.

The nearest rival to such distances is Kansas City. The American League club there had measurements of 370, 421, and 354 feet in 1961 but Richards said he understands the Athletics are cutting the size of their park for 1962.

"We'll have fewer home runs than other parks," Richards said. "I think the park is in real good shape."

The Colts are to use the temporary stadium only for their debut season. They are scheduled to move into a $22 million "rain or shine" stadium in 1963.

Tentative plans for the air conditioned domed stadium call for 340-foot foul lines and a distance of 400 feet from home plate to center field.

The temporary stadium will seat 32,000 compared to 46,217 for the domed stadium.

St. Paul Stays Unbeaten in Church League

St. Paul remained unbeaten in the Men's Church Basketball League by rolling to a 86-41 victory over the Bible Chapel.

Sacred Heart retained its hold on second place with a 69-63 squeaker over St. Mary's and St. James defeated Zion, 79-42.

Claude Radtke hit 23 points and Marty Schultz added 20 to pace the St. Paul victory. Ken Gibson was high for the Bible Chapel with 12 markers.

Jim Maahs bagged 10 field goals and five free throws for 25 points to pace the Sacred Heart win over St. Mary's. Mike Tierney, of the losers took game scoring honors with 26 markers.

Pizza Palace goals were scored by Paul Richter, Ken Priebe and Butch Farnrec. Each team scored once in the opening period and twice in the second.

Helps Bad Back Skowron Has Special Exercises in Morning

HILLSDALE, N.J. (AP)—Bill Skowron said at his home here. "Since that time, I've had these stretching exercises to do in the off-season."

"I do these exercises every day, right after I get out of bed. No question about it, they've helped me."

Simple Exercises "They're all simple exercises and for a guy like me I guess they've got to be done every day."

An aching back has plagued the muscled Moose for some time. With the exception of 1956, a year entirely free of injury, Skowron has been the Yankee doctor's best customer.

He incurred his most publicized aching back trying to lift an air conditioning unit just before the 1957 World Series. He hurt himself last July stooping over for a ground ball.

But the last two seasons have been relatively healthy ones. "Last year I missed only 10 games," Skowron said. "And the year before only eight. Doesn't this prove these exercises are helping me?"

"Playing practically the whole year takes some of the bite out of that .267 batting average I had," the Moose said. "Add maybe 10 or 15 points on that average and I would have had a 10-point margin midway in the big year. I batted in 89 runs and hit 28 homers."

Has Not Signed Skowron, who was 31 in December, has not yet signed his 1962 contract. He said he had one talk with general manager Roy Hamey and "we're very close."

Skowron leaves Feb. 28 for the Yankees' Fort Lauderdale, Fla., training camp. He has spent the winter working as part owner of a neon sign company in Nutley, and as vice president of a Paterson potato chip and popcorn outfit.

How about manager Ralph Houk's intention to have catcher Johnny Blanchard work out at first base during the spring to back up Skowron?

"It's a great idea," the Moose said. "I told John to do it last year. I'm with a great ball club and the main thing is to win the pennant. When the doubleheaders pile up or I'm aching, it's a good thing to have someone to back me (Elston) Howard did last year."

Kimberly JVs Tangle With Shawano Friday

Kimberly will lay its 1-game lead in the Mid-Eastern JV Conference on the line Friday night when it tangles with Shawano.

Shawano is tied with Two Rivers for fourth place. The Two Rivers JVs will meet second-place Clintonville.

Kaukauna will be at Menasha and Neenah at New London. Neenah handed Kimberly its first loss last Saturday.

Friday's Games: Shawano at Kimberly, Neenah at New London, Kaukauna at Menasha, Clintonville at Two Rivers.

Kimberly's 15-11 victory in the final match was the first loss suffered by Bleier's in 36 decisions this season.

Power Company Blue moved into second place by sweeping three matches from A.A.L. and the Police Department won two of its three games with Power Company Gray.

Bleier's (35-1) has a nine-game lead over Power Company Blue (28-10) in the team standings. Sindahl's (24-12). Police Department (12-24), A.A.L. (8-28), and Power Company Gray (3-33).

Police Department will meet A.A.L. and Bleier's tangles with Power Company Blue, at 7 p.m. next Monday. Power Company Gray meets Sindahl's, at 8 p.m. last Saturday.

Bearcats Face North Texas State Tonight

Arkansas Explodes In Last Half to Trim Tulsa, 99-77

BY JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Cincinnati returns to Missouri Valley Conference competition tonight, realizing it can afford no more missteps in its drive toward a possible second straight National Collegiate basketball title.

The third-ranked Bearcats, who beat non-conference powers Dayton and Duquesne last week, are at home to the league's last-place team, North Texas State.

In their quest for a fifth successive Missouri Valley championship and another berth in the NCAA tournament, the Bearcats find themselves in third place behind the two teams they have lost to this season, Bradley and Wichita. The Bradley Braves and Wichita Wheatshockers have split their two this year.

Cincinnati has seven conference games left, winding up at home against Bradley and Wichita on Feb. 19 and 24. The Bearcats are in a position where they have to win all seven and hope someone else trips up the Braves along the way. If Cincinnati wins its seven, and no one else can handle the Braves, it would put these hot rivals into a playoff for the Valley crown and the NCAA trip. At any rate, the pressure is on the Bearcats.

Walker Hospitalized

Bradley's road, incidentally, may not be a smooth one—at least not for the immediate future. The Braves' high-scoring All-America Chet Walker is hospitalized with a kidney ailment which will keep him out of Saturday night's game with North Texas and possibly out of the Tulsa game Monday night.

Wednesday night, Jerry Carlton staged some late-game exploits that sparked Arkansas to victory over Tulsa 99-77. Carlton netted six points as Arkansas scored eight straight in a spurt that broke it open, totaled 16 points in the final six minutes and 14 in the last four. He had 21 for the second half and 26 for the night.

Bob Schaumburg clicked on a field goal with two seconds to go, giving the Air Force a 58-56 victory over Denver. Schaumburg's clincher offset some clutch shooting by Dennis Hodge, who pulled Denver into a tie with two quick ones in the closing minute.

And in a day game, small college powerhouse Hofstra came from 12 points back in the second half and dealt Army its first loss at home in two years, 57-45. It was the 12th straight victory and 13th in 14 starts for the Flying Dutchman, ranked sixth among the nation's smaller schools.

State's Chipmunks Last to Go to Bed

BY CLARA RUSSONG

GREEN BAY — Of all our mammals which spend all or part of the winter in sleep, the chipmunk is one of the last to take to its bed. This is true of both species of chipmunks found in Wisconsin, the larger gray chipmunk and the least chipmunk.

The gray chipmunk moved out of the northward too, but not as far as the least chipmunk. It is still found in the state. The gray was more apt to be found in deciduous forests, and the least in evergreen woods, or in mixed forests. However, both species could and still can be found in one habitat.

Moved North

As the state became more populated and less forested, especially in the southeastern parts, both gray and least chipmunks moved northward. Now the gray chipmunk is confined to the northern half of the state. The least chipmunk moved to the ground becomes somewhat the least. It is still found in the frozen or is covered with snow before these lively little ground squirrels retire to their winter quarters. This happens most often in November. Their winter dens are underground burrows, with the entrance usually hidden under a brush pile, log or stone wall.

Food, in the form of seeds, berries, nuts and grain, is stored in the burrow, as well as in various caches near the chipmunk's home. It is known that they do not sleep as deeply as some other hibernators, and may come out of the burrow during mild spells in winter. Some biologists call of their winter's retirement a semi-hibernation.

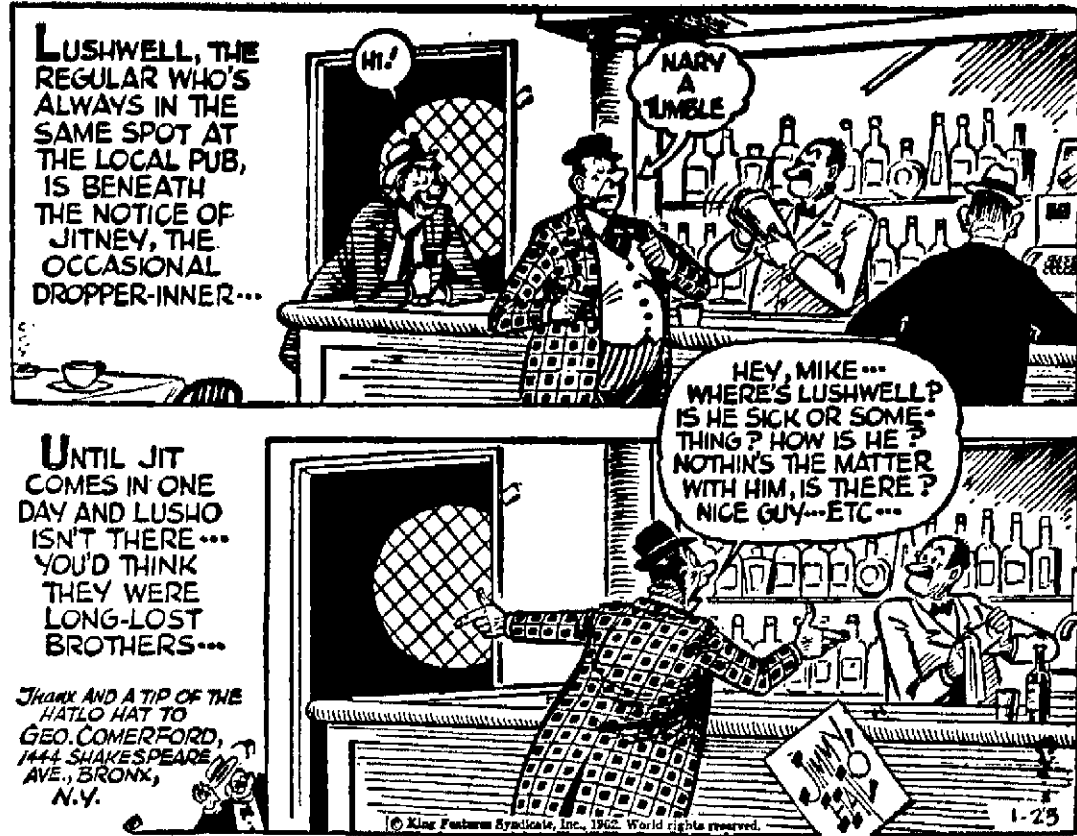

Find Niches

In an average spring they are out of the burrows by March. They look for the little niches and hollows where they've stored food the previous year, and may also feed on weed seeds, tree buds, and fruits of trees and bushes still adhering to the plants.

In both species mating takes place soon after they emerge from the winter nest. The gestation period is about a month, and from two to seven make up the litter. The young are very tiny, naked and "blind." Their eyes are open when they are about a month old.

Babe's Home Run Record Still Stands, Mrs. Ruth Insists

BOSTON (AP) — Babe Ruth's widow has three observations about modern baseball:

1. The Babe's home run record still stands despite Roger Maris' 61 homers over a longer season last year.
2. It's a hitter's market nowadays.
3. The game's best sluggers carry "toothpicks" compared to the bludgeon that Ruth once swung.

In Boston to attend tonight's baseball writers dinner, Mrs. Ruth told newsmen Wednesday that as far as she and "98 per cent of the fans all over the country" are concerned, Ruth's mark of 60 home runs never was broken.

Maris hit 59 home runs over 154 games for the New York Yankees last season, tying Ruth's 1927 standard of 60 homers in game No. 156 and adding No. 61 in the last game of the campaign that was extended to 162 games because of the league expansion.

"I felt the record belonged to the Babe and should always belong to him," she said. "So did 98 per cent of the fans. Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick also agrees with me. They may be playing 170 games in a few years. If they are, I couldn't agree that a player who hit more than 61 home runs had broken Maris' record."

She said Ruth would have had "a real ball" against the pitchers now active in the game. "He'd still swing that heavy bat, too," she said. "He wanted wood in his hands. He would have had no part of the toothpicks they're using today."

Jimmy Brown Says Club Made Mistake In Trading Mitchell

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. (AP)—Full-back Jimmy Brown of the National Football League's Cleveland Browns says the team made a mistake when it traded half-back Bobby Mitchell and a draft choice to Washington for the trading rights to Heisman Trophy winner Ernie Davis of Syracuse.

"I don't see how getting rid of the best breakout runner in the league can help us," Brown said in an interview Tuesday night. "I think Davis will be a good, solid player, but he'll never be as spectacular as Mitchell."

"I think it was a mistake to trade Mitchell, particularly before the season was over," Brown continued. "When we played our last game, Bobby knew he was gone. Two good men are involved in the deal and they're both friends of mine. Nobody will know how it works out until next year."

Hall of Fame, it was announced Wednesday.

They are the Rev. Carroll Olm, administrator of Fairhaven Home for the aged at Whitewater, and Rev. Linus Wierwill, pastor of Swiss Church, New Glarus. Both were graduated from Lakeland in 1946.

The college's hall of fame now has 11 members.

ABL Names Ed McGuire As Publicitor

CHICAGO (AP) — Eddie McGuire, 57, publicity director for the Chicago football Cardinals for 21 years, was named publicity director Wednesday of the American Basketball League.

The appointment was announced by ABL Commissioner Abe Saperstein, for whose Chicago Majors ABL entry McGuire also serves as publicitor.

McGuire left the Cardinals last season, a year after the National Football League club shifted from Chicago to St. Louis.

McGuire, once a Chicago American sports writer, in 1939-40 handled publicity for the Chicago Bruins. This was a pro basketball team operated by George Halas, present owner-coach of the NFL's Chicago Bears, and the late Charles (Blue Shirt) Bidwill, who also owned the Chicago Cardinals.

Kovacs Estate Estimated at $2.1 Million

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The widow of comedian Ernie Kovacs says he left an estate of $2.1 million.

Actress Edie Adams said in a Los Angeles court petition Wednesday that no will has been found. She estimated her late husband's income at $160,000 a year.

The petition said Kovacs' property included $4,868 in cash, $2,300 in stocks, $100,000 in bonds, and extensive real estate holdings.

Miss Adams asked for an allowance of $2,500 monthly to maintain the home and support their children, Betty Lee, 15; Kippie Raleigh, 13, and Mia Susan, 2. A hearing was set for Feb. 9.

Kovacs died instantly when his car skidded and struck a utility pole Jan. 13.

WINTER PARK, Fla. (AP) — The University of Wisconsin golf team learned Wednesday there is no substitute for plenty of outdoor practice.

The Badgers, who left a snowy campus for a trip south, dropped a 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 decision to Rollins College in a dual meet.

Wisconsin's only winner was Bill Iverson. Losers of their matches were Ralph Schlicht, Tom Nelson, Gibby Larson, Marty Gharitty and Bob Johnson.

ABL Names Ed McGuire As Publicitor

CHICAGO (AP) — Eddie McGuire, 57, publicity director for the Chicago football Cardinals for 21 years, was named publicity director Wednesday of the American Basketball League.

The appointment was announced by ABL Commissioner Abe Saperstein, for whose Chicago Majors ABL entry McGuire also serves as publicitor.

McGuire left the Cardinals last season, a year after the National Football League club shifted from Chicago to St. Louis.

McGuire, once a Chicago American sports writer, in 1939-40 handled publicity for the Chicago Bruins. This was a pro basketball team operated by George Halas, present owner-coach of the NFL's Chicago Bears, and the late Charles (Blue Shirt) Bidwill, who also owned the Chicago Cardinals.

New Athletic Conference Formed by Nine Schools

WESTFIELD (AP)—A new high 7-C, plus the addition of school athletic conference, to be Mauston Madonna, a Catholic high school. Competition will begin known as the Central-C, has been formed by eight public and one Catholic high school.

The conference, organized at a meeting here Tuesday, represents a merger of two interscholastic leagues—the Central Lakes and Necedah, Oxford, Port Edwards, and Wild Rose of the Central Lakes.

Newly elected officers are: Jerry LaFleur, principal of Wild Rose High School, president; Morley Van Zant, Tri-County superintendent, vice president, and F. Rogers Constance, Westfield faculty member, secretary-treasurer.

The Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic Association office at Stevens Point said it was not the first instance in which state public schools joined with a Catholic school in conference membership. Under WIAA rules, public schools may compete against Catholic schools on an individual basis, but where more than two schools are involved—such as a conference track meet, WIAA regulations would not permit a Catholic school to compete.

Actress Anne Bancroft Returns to Comedy

Reached Fame as Gamin in 'Seesaw,' Then Won Laurels as Annie Sullivan

BY JINGO
Anne Bancroft started today preparing for her new assault on Broadway. She went into rehearsal of her new play "Rich and Famous." One of America's finest actresses will be taking a respite from heavy drama by going back to the vehicle that rocketed her to the top rung, comedy.

Miss Bancroft is a remarkable personality. It's hard to realize the poignant portrayal of Annie Sullivan in "The Miracle Worker" was limned by the same actress who brought the gamin Gittel to exuberant life in "Two for the Seesaw."

Gittel was followed too closely and too explosively by Annie Sullivan for the films to immortalize Miss Bancroft on the Seesaw and the role caused something of a civil war in Hollywood before it was cast. Miss Bancroft, of course, will film Annie Sullivan and the chances are better than good that she will carry "Rich and Famous" to Hollywood.

Early casting does cut down on the rumor type of publicity. Here's an example, releases only seven days apart:

"Jerry Wald is paying Polly Bergen to play the old Joan Blondell role in Fox's musical version of 'A Tree Grows in Brooklyn.'"

Musicals are becoming the forte on Broadway. Morton DaCosta, recently the creator of "Music Man," is slated to direct an adaptation of Sinclair Lewis' "Dodsworth." S. N. Behrman and Burton Lane are collaborating on the words and music. Mark Schorer's biography of Sinclair Lewis and its popularity are responsible.

Bill Bendix returned to Broadway, where he made his first big way back as the black-pit crewman in "The Hairy Ape," when he replaced Jackie Gleason in the musical adaptation of O'Neill's "Ah, Wilderness." He's headed back again and on his own. He's signed to do a GI musical "General Seeger."

Drama isn't being forgotten entirely. Robert Preston will have Another benefit will be able to share. Kim Novak, Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin and Jack Lemmon will introduce 15-minute segments of a TV-special "The Best of Ernie." The proceeds will go to Ernie Kovacs' widow to help dig away the $220,000 mountain of back taxes the comedian left her when he was killed in a car crash.

A week later: "Judy Garland is 20th-Fox's No. One choice to play the footloose Aunt Gissie in the studio's musical remake of 'A Tree Grows in Brooklyn.'"

Among the commentary that annoyed the Viennese: Brinkley described Austria as "over-governed, under-worked, over-fed and tired—a remnant of 18th Century Europe, preserved in milk chocolate and whipped cream." He suggested life in Vienna consisted largely of "eating heavy pastry and listening to light music," that there were almost as many holidays as work days and that workmen "spent long, lovely, lazy days standing around," while the cameras illustrated the words with shots of construction workers taking their ease on the job.

Strauss music filled the program. It was perhaps at its best when Brinkley, with notable assistance from the camera, was describing the gastronomic joys of a city famed for its food.

Chiselers Turned Up In Capital Probe
WASHINGTON (AP) — A Welfare Department report said Wednesday an investigation of 29 Washingtonians receiving relief payments for dependent children turned up 17 who were chiselers.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., released the report as chairman of the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on District of Columbia funds. Byrd said that while only a small number of cases had been investigated he was "intensely interested" to learn that more than 50 per cent involved ineligible recipients.

Brinkley Show Angers Group Of Viennese

'Our Man in Vienna' Bright Hour of TV, Reports Reviewer

BY CYNTHIA LOWRY
NEW YORK (AP) David Brinkley's "Our Man in Vienna" Wednesday night on NBC, which included some marvelous photography and background music, was one of the brightest hours of television this season.

But the Brinkley treatment of the old Austrian city didn't go over well with an invited group of Viennese, with whom this reporter saw the show at a network preview.

They were angered at what one of the group, a high Austrian official, called "a totally false, unfair impression."

Among the commentary that annoyed the Viennese: Brinkley described Austria as "over-governed, under-worked, over-fed and tired—a remnant of 18th Century Europe, preserved in milk chocolate and whipped cream." He suggested life in Vienna consisted largely of "eating heavy pastry and listening to light music," that there were almost as many holidays as work days and that workmen "spent long, lovely, lazy days standing around," while the cameras illustrated the words with shots of construction workers taking their ease on the job.

Israel's U. N. Censure May Trigger Trouble For South Africa Jews

Jewish Settlement Fears Wave of Anti-Semitism From Verwoerd Bloc

BY SMITH HEMPSTONE
Chicago Daily News Foreign Service
NAIROBI, Kenya — South African Jews fear that Israel's condemnation in the United Nations of their adopted land's racial policies may produce a wave of anti-Semitism south of the Limpopo. Israel voted in favor both of the censure and the sanctions motions against South Africa. It was the only nation with diplomatic relations with South Africa to vote for both proposals.

Jewish fears became apparent when a prominent Cape Town Jew, Sydney East, wrote to South African Prime Minister Hendrik F. Verwoerd to express his personal disapproval of the Israeli moves.

The Dutch-born prime minister admitted that Israel's votes had produced "a new chain of thought" in South Africa concerning Israel, whose independence South Africa in the past has supported.

Religious Segregation
Verwoerd asserted that if apartheid by race was wrong, so was religious segregation as practiced in the Middle East.

The Afrikaner leader noted that "so many" South African Jews had voted against his National party in this year's general election. He called the Israeli position "a tragedy" for South African Jews.

Verwoerd later denied that his letter to East was intended as a threat to South African Jewry.

Opposition leaders in the United, Progressive and Liberal parties, however, described the prime minister's letter as "frightening," "threatening" and "menacing."

South Africa has a Jewish population of about 110,000 among its 3,000,000 whites. This gives it proportionally a slightly larger Jewish population than the United States.

Afrikaner Respect
Historically, Jews and Afrikaners (White South Africans primarily of Dutch extraction) have gotten along well together. The Afrikaners, an extremely religious people with the fundamentalist's literal regard for the Bible, have respected the discipline and piety of "the people of the book."

But anti-Semitism is no stranger to South Africa. It flourished with the National party in the 1930s and 1940s, at least among the Afrikaner right wing.

This group, with which Verwoerd has long been associated, was heavily influenced by the German Nazis, whom they saw as their natural allies against English rule.

Commercial Community
Most of South Africa's Jews are concentrated on the Rand, around the commercial and industrial center of Johannesburg. As a whole they are a wealthy, urban community.

The Afrikaners, in contrast, are fundamentally an economically underprivileged rural people, although they have been moving to the cities in great numbers in recent years.

Jews are prominent in South Africa's small but troublesome Communist party. A few are associated with Alan Paton's Liberal party.

Others, because of the fears aroused during the anti-Semitism of the 1930s and 1940s, have tried to disassociate themselves from politics. A handful have adopted the protective coloration of extreme Afrikaner nationalism.

It is difficult for them to pose as supporters of Verwoerd, however, since almost all South African Jews are English-speaking while the National party is composed almost entirely of Afrikaans-speaking people.

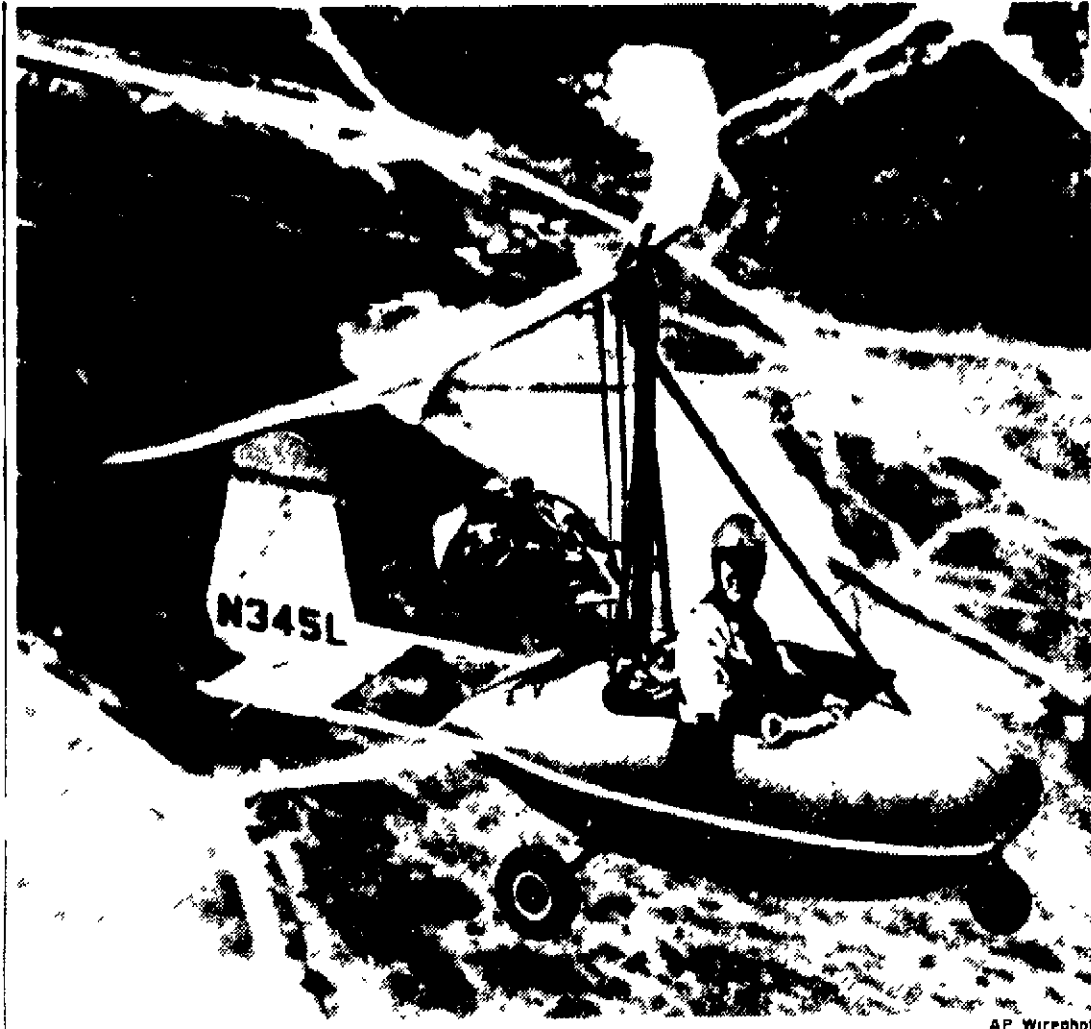

Little Anti-Semitism

Since it came to power in 1948, there has been a marked reduction in outward anti-Semitism within the National party. Verwoerd points out that his party in its 13 years in office has introduced no anti-Jewish legislation.

The fact is that, whatever the beliefs of individual Afrikaners, anti-Semitism is no longer an effective, necessary or desirable political tool.

If anything, he has discouraged rather than encouraged discrimination on religious lines (including discrimination against Catholics, who are distrusted by the Calvinistic Afrikaners) in the hope of gaining approval for his racial policies.

Seen in this light, it is extremely unlikely that programs are around the corner in South Africa. Verwoerd seems to be carrying Inventor Herman A. Saalfeld, flying his "Skyscooter" thinks it might be just the thing for the harried motorist commuter. The midget aircraft will be unveiled at the San Francisco National Sports and Boat Show.

Dalai Lama's Formula

'Root Cause Must be Removed To End Conflict in This World'

BY DAVE MEADE
Chicago Daily News Service
DHARMSALA, Punjab, India—How can man find peace?

The Dalai Lama, exiled ruler of Tibet, answered in his own language.

Then a youthful Tibetan interpreted in English.

"His Holiness said he hasn't sufficient knowledge to comment on world affairs, but he will say a few words from Lord Buddha's teaching."

The translated words went this way: "There is so much opposition (conflict) in this world, and it all comes from people's minds."

Root Cause

"In order to do away with this opposition, the root cause must be removed."

"Since the root lies in the mind, material means are not sufficient to solve this."

"Some countries are trying to impose their will by might, using nuclear weapons and other means, but these material methods will not change the mind."

"Both these oppositions (conflicting groups) really desire peace. But they cannot achieve peace by material means alone."

"Only a spiritual, religious influence can change the mind."

The black-haired, bespectacled Dalai Lama wore the purple robe of his office in an interview in Swarg Ashram — "Heavenly abode" — the Tibetan government-in-exile headquarters nestled 6,000 feet up on a southern slope of the Himalayan range.

At 27, he bears the mantle of spiritual and temporal leadership of his scattered people with an air of combined resignation and determination.

The exodus started two years ago.

Today more than 80,000 men, women and children, like the Hebrews of ancient Israel, have been dispersed from their homeland by the Chinese occupation of Tibet.

They have taken refuge in settlements throughout India, Nepal, Bhutan and Sikkim. And more are escaping through the rugged mountain passes across the top of the world to freedom.

Simple Quarters
The Dalai Lama talked nearly an hour in a simple room almost barren of furnishings and heated only by electric coil and reflector.

From Swarg Ashram, overlooking the Indian town of Dharmasala, he and a staff of about 70 lamas and other self-imposed exiles cooperate with government authorities in the tremendous task of refugee rehabilitation.

His sister supervises the care of 450 children living near here in a transient camp and nursery. The young, alert "Living God" and King of Tibet is studying English.

Te occasionally meditated a few moments before speaking, as if carefully selecting his words, and sometimes corrected his translation in order to put across a more exact meaning of what he said.

He confirmed reports about starvation, imprisonment, suppression of religion and virtual slavery under the Communist invaders of Tibet.

Starvation Experienced
"It is true," he said. "Starvation is something never known before in Tibet."

"In the summer, anything green is eaten, but by eating this their faces and bodies become swollen and finally they die."

Monks' quarters in Tibet's 3,000 to 4,000 monasteries are almost empty, he related, and some monasteries are in ruins.

In the big monastery at Sera, which usually housed 7,000 or 8,000 monks, there are now about 200, he said.

Most of the monks are in forced labor camps or in jail.

The Buddhist scriptures — the Pancha — and other Tibetan religious texts are being converted into fertilizer or shoe soles or burned.

He added, "Laymen used to go to temples to offer prayers. If they do this now, they are accused of having something wrong with their brain. So they are brainwashed."

Increasing numbers of children are being taken to China for indoctrination.

In his concern to preserve the Tibetan language, history, art, the Administration Really Trying For Steel Pact

Valiant Attempt to Get Contract Sealed
Before Deadline

BY SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—The Kennedy Administration is giving the old college try in its hope of changing the pattern of prime labor crises.

Americans are used by now to important labor management negotiations going down to the final deadline for strike with tension mounting over possible calamities to companies, workers and public alike. The suspense often takes a toll itself—in nerves, in bitterness, in money, in economic disruption.

In the upcoming steel contract talks, widely labeled this year as crucial, the administration is hoping to get a pact well in advance of the July 1 strike deadline. The public would doubtless be the gainer especially if the hurried-up talks don't set off another inflationary wage price spiral.

Goals Too High?
But even the well-wishers for the success of the administration effort and they are many, wonder a little if the goals the President set in his news conference Monday can be reached, human nature being what it is.

The President wants the early pact to halt a buildup in steel inventories already under way and likely to get up steam if the talks later should appear headed for deadlock. Such a buildup could upset the time table of the current recovery, and a subsequent let-down could disrupt the economy.

It is only natural for both labor and management negotiators to want to use any tool they can to win their points. One traditional tool is an approaching deadline whose increasing nearness inspires concessions to avoid a strike. Neither side would want a strike if it could get in other ways the concessions on which it has set its heart.

Avoid Hoarding
While the administration strives to get the steel talks under way and hopes for an early pact, it is urging steel users to avoid piling up steel stocks. Their increased orders, apparently for a hedge against a possible strike, has sent steel output to its highest weekly volume since early April 1960.

It is to the steel users advantage to avoid piling up stocks beyond their current needs, the Iron Age points out today. The metalworking weekly says this would ease pressure on the market, eliminate the cost of carrying heavy stocks, and help prevent a possible business decline in the final months of the year, which would hurt them along with many others.

But the magazine also notes that many steel users feel they can't afford to gamble on any evidence to date that there won't be a strike or a hike in prices as a result of it or of a pact averting it. Company executives feel they can't afford to be caught without steel.

British Honduras, Guatemala Merger Would Seem Unwise

Both Countries Have Enough Economic Problems of Their Own

BY GERRY ROBICHAUD
Chicago Daily News Service

MEXICO CITY — If Guatemala's noisy claim to British Honduras is ever satisfied, the consolidation of the two territories will have all the dubious advantages of merging an orphanage with a poorhouse.

Under President Miguel Ydigoras Fuentes, as under the other presidents who preceded him, Guatemala already has more economic and social headaches than it can hope to solve with a half dozen alliances for progress.

But the poverty and misery that are so prevalent in much of Guatemala are even more widespread in neighboring British Honduras, or Belize (pronounced Bel-leece) as it is more commonly called in Latin America.

Without Subsidy

Without a subsidy from Britain that amounts to a minimum of $6 million a year, the Belize colony and its 80,000 people would present one of the saddest cases of social and economic underdevelopment to be found anywhere.

Even with the subsidy, Belize is just about as forsaken a spot as any in the Western hemisphere.

Many veteran observers are convinced that if Britain ever wanted to even the score with Ydigoras for the trouble he has stirred up over the Belize issue, the best way would be to let him have the colony.

The greatest mystery of all is why Ydigoras has gone to such lengths to reclaim the territory that Guatemala ceded to Britain more than a century ago.

Take by Force

Only recently he suggested that he might pull a Nehru by attempting to take Belize by force.

Part of his strategy appears to be to use Belize as a focal point for an emotional nationalist campaign that will take the average Guatemalan's mind off his own desperate plight and the shortcomings of the Ydigoras regime.

But in my frequent visits to Guatemala I have found few Guatemalans who can be whipped into a frenzy over the Belize issue. Most of those I have talked to are inclined to be indifferent about the whole thing, and some are outspokenly opposed to annexing Belize.

It may well be that Ydigoras has undertaken the Belize campaign in part to bolster his own ego by a demonstration of his readiness and ability to "stand up" to such an antagonist as Britain.

Whatever his motives, they are far from clear.

Ydigoras is at his best when he is heaping abuse and calumny, mixed with considerable wit, on his enemies. Because it is remote, because it is gentlemanly and because it must make certain concessions, such as discussing the Belize question with him, Britain is the ideal foil for Ydigoras' roughhouse tactics.

Fairly Good Case

In terms of international law, Guatemala may have a fairly good case so far as its claim to part of Belize is concerned. In 1857, when Britain and Guatemala signed a treaty ceding some of Guatemala's territory to what is now Belize, the British promised as part of the bargain to build and pay for a road from the Caribbean coast to Guatemala.

The promise was never kept, and so it could be argued that the entire treaty is null and void. But since the Guatemalans waited a century before seriously challenging Britain's failure to live up to the terms of the original bargain, it might also be argued that it is now too late for Guatemala to sue — the statute of limitations now applies in the case.

Weakest Point

The Ydigoras argument is weakest in the contention that Guatemala wants to end colonialism in Belize.

For Guatemala to take over Belize without the consent of the British Honduras would be merely to substitute Guatemalan colonialism for British colonialism.

The British position that it is up to the people of Belize to eventually decide their own future — as an independent country, as a British Commonwealth member, or as a part of Guatemala — has considerable appeal in Belize itself.

What way the people of Belize might go, nobody knows. But they are smart enough to recognize that as of now, at least, they are getting indispensable financial help from Britain that they could not expect from impoverished Guatemala.

It does not seem reasonable that the people of Belize would take a course that might make their lot worse than it now is.

If Ydigoras were as opposed to colonialism as he says he is, he would be more consistent for him to also adopt the position that the British Honduras themselves should determine their political future.

BONN — De-Stalinization suddenly has become less popular as a subject for official discussion in Poland, says the well-informed Neue Zuercher Zeitung.

The new restraint, the newspaper suggests, may have been ordered by Communist authorities out of fear that sooner or later talk of Stalin's "crimes" would have reopened the painful history of the Katyn massacres.

Some of the other relics of the Hitler-Stalin pact of 1939 have been cleared away, the newspaper says.

Archives and art objects seized by the Soviets at the time they split Poland in a secret deal with the Nazis have been restored to Poland, the newspaper reports.

Denounce Molotov Speech

Soviet authorities also have denounced a speech by V. M. Molotov, former Soviet Foreign Minister, who referred to Poland in 1939 as "a bastard child of the Versailles Peace Treaty."

The subject of Katyn, however, remains taboo, the newspaper says.

The Germans announced in April, 1943, that they had found mass graves in the Katyn forest near Smolensk of some 10,000 Polish soldiers, most of them of Katyn.

Officers, who had been taken prisoner by the Soviets at the time of Poland's partition in 1939. All of these prisoners had been murdered.

The Germans blamed the Soviets and said the massacres occurred in the spring of 1940. The Soviets blamed the Germans, saying the Polish prisoners had been killed after the Nazi invasion of the Soviet Union in 1941.

Doubt Germans Responsible

There is ample evidence now that the Germans had killed hundreds of thousands of Poles, Russians and Jews in this period, but genuine doubt about German responsibility.

The Soviets at the Nuremberg War Crimes Trials introduced the subject of Katyn as "one of the most important criminal actions" of the Nazis, and then, under sharp defense questioning, the Soviets dropped the matter altogether.

A U.S. Congressional Committee, after a lengthy inquiry, reported in 1953 that the Katyn massacres were the work of the Soviets. It set the figure of Polish victims at 14,000.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev is having troubles enough with his Pandora box of Stalin's crimes. It is understandable that the Communists are reluctant to reopen the explosive subject of Polish soldiers, most of them of Katyn.

National Guard Rally Will be In Washington

FT. LEWIS, Wash. (AP)—The 1962 Wisconsin National Guard Association convention will be held in a Washington state city, as yet unchosen, July 14, Brig. Gen. Francis F. Schweinler, association president, announced Wednesday.

He said the reason was that 900 of the some 1,200 members are here, as officers of the state's 32nd infantry division, called to active duty last October.

Schweinler, commander of the division's artillery, said the date will be changed from September to enable delegates to attend the Seattle world's fair. It is the first such convention outside Wisconsin.

The decision was announced after Schweinler conferred here with Maj. Gen. Ralph J. Olson, Madison, Wisconsin state adjutant general; Col. Alvin P. Wang of Camp Douglas, Wis., U. S. property and fiscal officer for the state; and Lt. Col. Thomas L. Moffat, Madison, commander of the Wisconsin Air National Guard fighter group based at Madison.

The three had flown here to visit units of the 32nd division.

An Appleton fireman has found he has a friend more than willing to help him stick to his diet. Early this week the fireman, carrying his lunch bag, left his house for work. Just outside the door he remembered something he wanted to take to work. He set his lunch bag on the sidewalk and went into the house.

When he returned a moment later a neighborhood dog was loping away down Harding Avenue carrying the lunch bag. The fireman pursued the dog down the avenue and recovered his lunch. The lunch was in good shape except for one boiled egg, which apparently couldn't stand up under the chase.

Popular Misconceptions

Older Persons Don't Become More Religious

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS there is no adequate proof to substantiate the view that people become more religious as they age. Studies of the relationship between age and religion do not support this common view and suggest that older people's religious behavior is determined by more direct social and cultural factors.

Aging and Religion
There is a popular impression that the older persons grow the more religious they become. To test the validity of this belief, Dr. H. L. Orbach studied the relationship between age, religion and church activity in a cross-section of 6,911 adults in the DeWitt A. Coburn of Seattle, Wash., metropolitan area between the ages of 21 and 84. His conclusions as reported in the publication Geriatrics "But results have shown that, fertility and sterility that only one woman in the group subsequently gave birth to a child. They concluded, "The fact that only one pregnancy occurred in this study agrees with the results of other investigations which indicate that the belief that normal pregnancy frequently follows adoption is false."

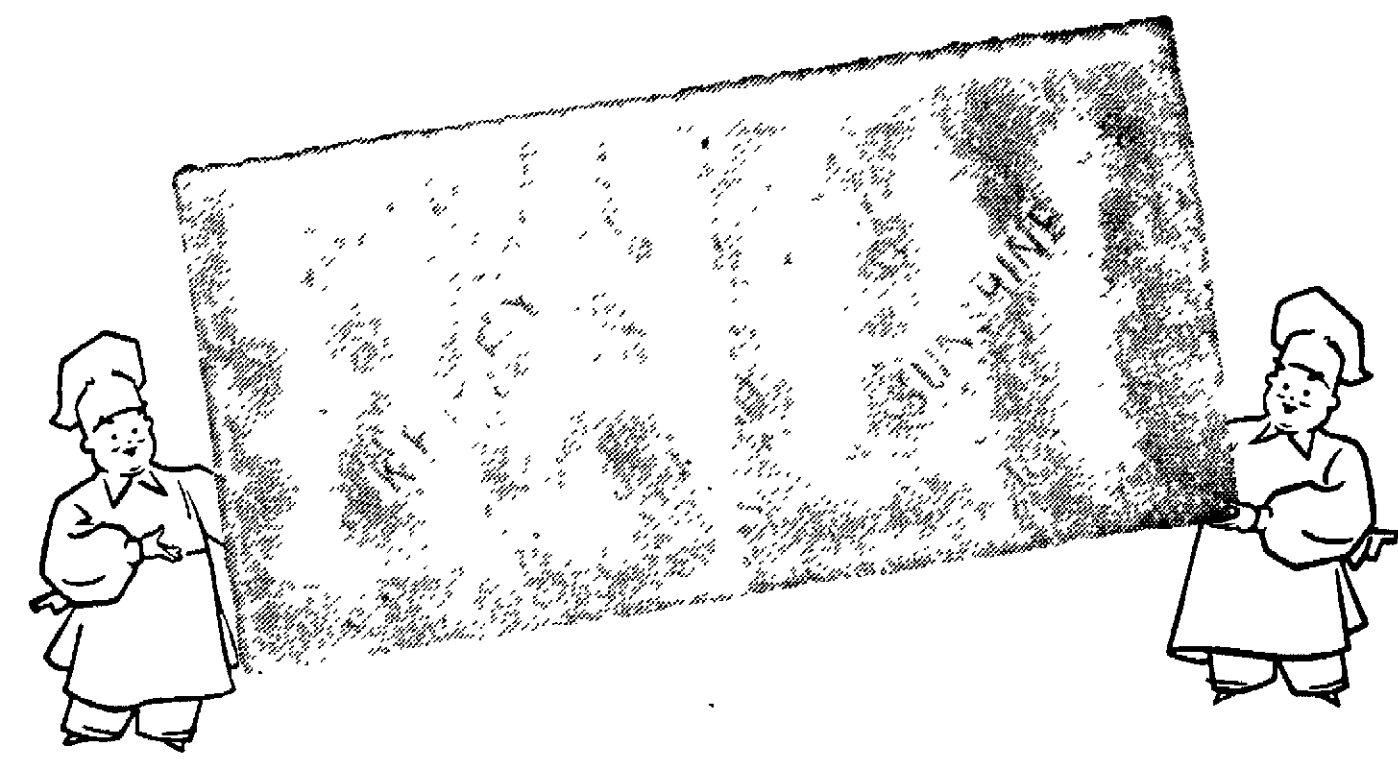

Fertility and Sterility
Another popular assumption is that if a childless woman adopts a baby, she vastly improves her chances of giving birth later. To test this possibility, Drs. A. J. Banks, R. N. Rutherford and W. A. Coburn of Seattle, Wash., made follow-up studies of 31 infertile couples who were treated at a clinic and later adopted one or more babies. They reported in the publication at the Rambam Government Hos-

Birth Complications
Another general medical belief has been that a mother who has had many babies must expect complications in the birth of another child. Two obstetricians from Israel, Drs. K. Fuchs and A. Peretz, poured over the records of 23,528 deliveries between 1949 and 1958 at the Rambam Government Hos-

Honor Pastor

Folk Dance Troupe To Appear at Iola

Series of Events Scheduled for Winter Carnival Starting Feb. 9

IOLA — The schedule of events for the Iola Winter Carnival was completed when carnival committee chairman, Richard Olson, received confirmation of the appearance of a folk dancing troupe for Feb. 9.

The carnival will begin with a Scandinavian supper Feb. 9 sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary. Serving will begin at 4 p.m. with the traditional lutefisk and lefse, meathalls and the usual accompanying dishes. Those serving the meal will wear Norwegian costumes as will all Iola business people and their employees during the three days of the carnival.

Folk Dancing

Following the supper, there will be a program of folk dancing by a group from LaCrosse State College. The troupe presents entertainment in costumes under the theme of "United Nations in Dancing," featuring folk dances from many countries of the world, including the Scandinavia countries. The program will be sponsored by the Iola Lions Club.

Feb. 10 the Iola Conservation Club will have a Fisheree on the Iola Pond from 1 to 3 p.m. with prizes awarded for the best fish in several categories and the biggest of all. There will be skating races for youngsters of the area with James Keepers in charge, also under sponsorship of the Lions Club.

Saturday evening a carnival queen will be crowned at a coronation snowball from 9 p.m. to midnight under the sponsorship of the American Legion.

The snow princesses competing for the title of queen are four Iola-Scandinavia High School students elected by her class. Each will represent one of the sponsoring organizations as official hostess for the carnival. The girls are Audrey Melum, senior; Louise Roufs, junior; Sandra Knut-

Union Sets Strike Date at Allis-Chalmers

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The United Auto Workers Union has set Feb. 20 as strike date at eight Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co. plants unless a new contract is agreed upon.

Herschel Davis, a UAW spokesman, said the company was advised Wednesday of the deadline. The previous contract expired Nov. 1 and the UAW members have been working under a contract extension. Issues include wages, length of contract, a shorter work week, pensions, vacations and supplemental unemployment benefits.

(Valley Iron Works, Appleton, is a subsidiary of Allis Chalmers but is not affected by these negotiations.)

The company said wages at the Milwaukee plant average $2.95 an hour.

A company statement said: "negotiations are still in an early stage and of course can be con-

Man Wanted in County Identified in Press Picture

A burglary suspect who was photographed during an on-the-spot arrest at a Los Angeles store has been identified as an Appleton man wanted by the Outagamie County Sheriff's Department.

An Associated Press photo of Wayne Ward Southard, 29, was printed in Wednesday's Post-Crescent. He was shown being held at gunpoint by a Los Angeles policeman.

Sheriff Robert Heinritz said today Southard, who has lived in Appleton, is wanted for nonsupport and probation violation.

On April 18, Southard was convicted of disorderly conduct and was placed on one year's probation to the department of public welfare. He disappeared in July.

A nonsupport warrant against Southard was prepared in September. His record dates from 1952.

Heinritz said Southard was traced to Los Angeles, but was not brought back to face the charges.

A reciprocal action, which would permit Southard to be tried for nonsupport in Los Angeles, was prepared by Dist. Atty. Nick F. Schaefer early this month.

Two Newcomers File Papers for 6th Ward Post

Two more political newcomers have filed papers for the vacant Sixth Ward alderman position.

Charles Caplain, 76, president of the common council does not plan to run in the April election.

Filing papers today were Frederick Ziemann, 1315 W. College Ave., and H. J. Salentine, 1013 W. Lawrence St.

Ziemann is employed as a wood buyer and forester at the Combined Locks Paper Co. Salentine is a mill worker at the Thilmany Pulp and Paper Co.

Another newcomer, John R. Roemer, 727 S. Story St. has already filed for the Sixth Ward vacancy.

Twentieth Ward incumbent Ervin Bogan, 59, also filed papers today. Bogan, 1122 W. Commercial St. has been alderman since 1939 except for two years between 1948 and 1950 when he was defeated by Orville Abendroth.

Bogan is unopposed but papers have been taken out by John Meiers, 321 W. Pershing St. for the position.

Continued hard freezes threaten water service to some homes in Appleton.

The freeze line is down to 4 1/2 feet below the surface. Henry Fulcer, water utility superintendent said. Another foot of freeze and some older water laterals may become frozen. Fulcer said.

Two years ago, the water utility answered about 50 emergency calls for frozen laterals. The utility uses a "pipe-thawer" to heat the pipe and melt the freeze.

Residents whose water service is frozen and thawed are warned to keep their pipes operating during the night to avoid refreezing. Thawing is not charged to the water customer unless it is required a second time. Fulcer said.

Last year and so far this winter, the utility has had no requests for thawing pipes.

Merger of United, Capital Airlines Upheld by Court

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld today the merger of United Air Lines and Capital Airlines which has been in effect since last June.

The court dismissed a request for a stay of the Civil Aeronautics Board order which permitted the merger. Eastern Air Lines, Delta Airlines and Northwest Airlines had sought to prevent the combination.

The court said that instead of tending to create a monopoly as the petitioners contended, the merger would serve to create more competition.

Ex-Appleton Hardware Owner Dies

Robert O. Reinke, 93, of 1019 N. Durkee St., died early this morning after a long illness. He was co-owner of the former Reinke and Court Hardware Store, and retired in 1943.

Reinke was born June 21, 1868, in Milwaukee. He moved to Oshkosh and later to a farm at Apple Creek, where he lived as a boy.

After working in the hardware business for a number of years, he and John F. Miller started the Miller and Reinke Hardware Co. Later a new partnership was formed with Emil H. Court. The Reinke and Court Hardware Co. erected a building at 322 N. Appleton St., where the business was conducted for many years. The building was sold to the Appleton Cooperative Assn. when Reinke retired.

Reinke was a member of the Outagamie County Pioneer Society.

He is survived by his only daughter, Miss Irene Reinke, Appleton.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at Zion Lutheran Church, with the Rev. W. H. Gammelin officiating. Burial will be in Riverside Cemetery.

Temperatures to Remain Same, but Snow May Fall

The warmer weather the Fox Cities residents are experiencing is expected to continue for the next few days.

A continuing southerly circulation of warmer air should keep temperatures quite a bit milder than what we had become used to in the past few weeks.

The high forecast today is 32 while tonight's low shouldn't fall below 18.

Pacific Cell

A Pacific Northwest low cell could bring snow or rain into the area tomorrow, but temperatures aren't expected to dip radically.

The milder temperature trend continued Wednesday with some points reporting highs above the freezing level. La Crosse topped daytime readings with 37 degrees.

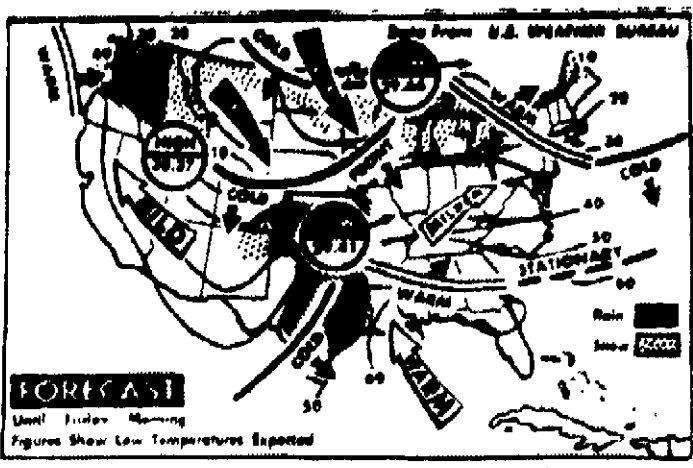

Other maximums were Lone Rock, Eau Claire and Superior-Duluth 32, Green Bay and Wausau 31, Milwaukee and Beloit, Rockford 30, Madison 28 and Park Falls 27.

Overnight temperatures were considerably warmer than those of the preceding period. Superior-Duluth had the minimum of 12. Elsewhere the lows were Beloit, Rockford 14, Lone Rock 16, Eau Claire 17, Green Bay 18, Park Falls 20, Wausau 21, Milwaukee 22 and La Crosse 25.

The only precipitation was a half inch reported in the Park Falls area and a trace at Superior-Duluth.

Skies were cloudy at mid-morning today as temperatures ranged from 13 at Superior-Duluth to 30 at Milwaukee.

Fort Myers, Fla., had Wednesday's national high of 85 while Roosevelt, Utah, had a low of -18 this morning.

Snow Is Forecast tonight for the northern tier of states from Maine to Idaho while rain is expected in the central and southern Plains and in the northwest Pacific states. Moderating temperatures are expected in most of the nation.
